Atom Thefts Vital Machinery Photos

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 10—While atomic energy officials belittled the theft of "documents" from the Los Alamos, N. M. plant, the Hearst newspapers learned today the "documents" actually were photographic negatives of vital machinery used in making the atomic bomb.

It was further disclosed that one of the two men stealing the top secret information was a professional photographer.

This was learned from Rep. Van Zandt, (R.) of Pennsylvania, member of the joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, three times national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and veteran of both wars.

He charged the War Dept., the Lilienthal Civilian Commission and the committee of which he is a member all have been lax in security and said that "obviously they have a lot to learn."

He said that although the theft occured in March of 1946 it was not discovered by the commission until April of this year and it was only a month ago the Department of Justice completed a preliminary report.

According to this the professional photographer member of the two man team had made prints of the negatives of the secret bomb mechanism and a large number of them were found in his commercial studio.

Yielding to public pressure the Department of Justice late tonight, declared the two men probably will be prosecuted. In the meantime, it was admitted, they had not been booked even for a misdemeanor.

Meanwhile a report of the theft of other vital secrets from the parent atomic plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn., persisted.

Two members of the Atomic Committee are ready to blow the lid off the Oak Ridge case. They claim they have information that documents disappeared after David Lilienthal's Atomic Energy Commission took over.

Some sources reported that an "inventory" is now being taken at Oak Ridge and that it is a "routine" affair. However, the two legislators believe it is a search for the missing secrets.

It was denied by Senator Hickenlooper, chairman of the joint committee, but it was pointed out it would be policy to keep such information from getting to the public.

Members of the committee were plainly nervous and ill at ease, however.

The FBI said that the two men had been Army sergeants in a military detail which had access to top secret files, according to Van Zandt, but took the negatives as "souvenirs" when they were discharged.

"We have only the word of the FBI that these two men are quite innocent of any intentional wrongdoing and they do not believe any of the negatives or subsequent prints could have been picked up by Russian spies," Van Zandt stated.

"It is anybody's guess who may have had access to this information within that time.

"It is also amazing that neither of the two men have been placed under arrest and that the commission doubts whether there is any law under which they can be prosecuted.

"To me it is of vital importance that the whole machinery of security be overhauled, if it is not too late."

No member of the committee would say whether the stolen photographs of vital machinery would reveal to alien scientists the long-guarded secret of just how the bomb is put together.

Chairman Hickenlooper took the floor of the Senate to explain that some "files" had been extracted from the records at the Los Alamos plant, but that the FBI had recovered them and no harm had been done.

"It is all water over the dam now and the papers were recovered a month ago," he declared.

However, top ranking officers of the Army and Navy as well as the FBI were called into hurried conferences and the joint security agencies of all of them set in motion. They meet again tomorrow.

Joseph Volpe, of the Atomic Commission Security Division, announced that all 50,000 employes of the vast atomic project are now being screened for loyalty by the FBI.

Members of Congress were specifically incensed at the long lapse of time it took to discover that a theft had been committed. The atomic documents were gone full 13 months before anyone knew they were missing.

First to Spot Flying Discs Sticks to His Original Story

PENDLETON, Ore., July 10 (INS)—The first person to report "flying discs" stood staunchly by his original story today and rejected any suggestion that he might have seen a weather balloon or the exhaust of jet planes.

He also declared that only three other people have seen what he witnessed and implied that other "eyewitnesses" of the mysterious aircraft are reporting something else—or nothing at all.

He is Kenneth Arnold, flying businessman of Boise, Idaho, who still refuses to say what he thinks the objects are. He declared:

"I won't make any wild guesses. I'm only telling what I saw."

After completing a five-hour flight over Oregon and Washington seeking more of the strange aircraft—the latest of several such flights—he denied flatly that they could have been weather balloons. A "disc" finally captured Tuesday turned out to be such a balloon.

He expressed belief that the only other authentic reports of the discs have come from Capt. E. J. Smith, pilot of a United Airlines plane, and his co-pilot, Ralph Stevens, who reported seeing the things on a flight from Boise to Portland.

The fliers said they called their stewardess, Marty Morrow of Seattle, who saw the same objects.

Arnold declared:

"All three of us agree that the discs are bigger than a DC-3 (a twin-engine passenger plane) and that they were moving at high speed.

"I've seen weather balloons and a lot of other things floating around in the sky.

"But I got a good view of what I looked at.

"I actually saw a type of aircraft slightly longer than it was wide, with a thickness about one-twentieth as great as its width.

"I observed them not only with the sun shining on them but also as black objects against the snow and ridges of Mount Rainier and Mount Adams (in western Washington)."

Arnold said the nine objects flying in formation first drew his attention when he thought they were jet planes. It was June 24, and he was taking time from a business flight to look for a marine transport lost in the Mount Rainier area since December.

"I reckoned the saucers were 23 miles away," he said, "because they flew behind one of the peaks of Mount Rainier. I can show on the map exactly where the peak is and where I was.

"I observed them for not more than three minutes, but in the air you can observe an object from six to 100 times in that space of time, and check your instruments too.

"When I thought they were jet planes, I decided to clock them. Then I saw that they didn't have any tails. I've seen plenty of planes looking round, but these were nothing like that. Neither was there jet plane exhaust.

"They took one minute and 42 seconds from the southern crest of Mt. Rainer to the southern crest of Mt. Adams, that's a distance of 50 miles.

"Allowing for an error resulting from my angle of observation, I reported that they were flying at least 1200 miles an hour. Actually, it figures out 1381 or 1382.

"I was over and slightly west of Mineral, Wash., flying at 9200 feet when I first noticed them. They were about the same altitude."

He estimated their size by holding a small tool up to his eye while looking at them and then looking at a DC-4 (four engined passenger plane) west of him the same way.

The only difference between his observation and that of the airline pilots, he said, is that his "discs" had smooth surfaces on both sides and theirs were rough on the upper side.

Chick Brooder Type Flying Saucer Lands

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 10 (AP)—A saucer-shaped mechanical contraption, resembling a chicken brooder top with a few gadgets added, was found in a flower-bed at the home of Russell Long, construction engineer, last night.

Long called the fire department. The metal saucer, 30 inches in diameter, he said, had belched smoke from two exhaust pipes, emitting a blue-white glare.

Richard B. Hood, federal investigation chief here, said the device would be turned over to military authorities.

The object had a radio tube on top, set into the upper half of the saucer, which was about five inches thick at the middle and tapered to a thin perimeter. Wires led to a plug embedded in the center of the lower half. There was a rudder-type wing on top.

Long, awakened by a pop not as loud as an explosion, rushed outside to find the device. He said it had nudged a few bricks out of his flower border.

NAVY WINGS?

NEW YORK, July 10 (INS)—Walter Winchell, New York Daily Mirror columnist, wrote today that despite vigorous denials by Army and Navy officials the flying saucers actually are flying wings being developed by the U. S. Navy.

Winchell says they can land at a very low speed—making them good for carriers, and that there "is said to be an entire squadron at Muroc Field, Cal."

He added:

"The above is not rumor—it is a fact, according to 'insides' who were promised that the source would be protected."

Mayor Curley May Visit Son Ill in Hospital

While George J. Curley, 28, lay gravely ill in Cohasset Hospital, his life apparently hinging on results of a 24-hour penicillin treatment, it was learned today that his father, Mayor James M. Curley may be rushed here from the federal jail in Danbury, Ct., for a visit to his son's bedside.

A federal official here, who requested anonymity, quoted the U. S. Department of Justice regulations governing such cases. "The rule is," he said, "that an inmate of a federal penal institution may be allowed to visit the deathbed or attend the funeral of a member of his immediate family."

If Mayor Curley does receive permission for the trip from Danbury jail, it would be in the company of guards for a hurried automobile trip to the Cohasset Hospital.

Prison officials at Danbury, stated today that the 72-year-old mayor was told the news of his 28-year-old son's illness by the institution chaplain, and was reported to have "taken it hard."

Whether the young Navy veteran and city greeter rallies from the effects of pleurisy and pneumonia cannot be determined until his reaction to the 24-hour penicillin treatment is learned, it was stated at the hospital.

Although he rallied slightly a few hours after he was carried into the hospital on a stretcher from the Curley summer home in North Scituate, his condition today was announced as "unchanged."

A nurse remarked, "He is still very sick."

He is under the care of Dr. Edward H. Schott of Cohasset, who attended the mayor in the same hospital less than a month ago. The doctor visited him three times within a few hours and reported George was suffering intense pain in the left lung, which is congested.

"I can not say much for 24 hours, until I see how he reacts to the penicillin," said the physician.

Last rites of the church were administered by the Rev. Thomas F. Devlin, pastor of St. Anthony's Church. "He is a very sick boy, with a high temperature, and the doctors are worried about him," said the priest, who administered

MRS. SHEILA MANNERING, 49, SLAIN IN NEW YORK APARTMENT
Partly-Smoked Cigar Valuable Clue in Murder of Former Actress

Hunt Tryst Strangler of N. Y. Actress

NEW YORK, July 10—The widening hunt for the kiss-and-kill strangler of blonde actress Sheila Mannering centered today on a suspect described by Police Comr. Arthur W. Wallander as a "short, fat and bald man who visited the victim often and always at night." Wallander said a half-smoked cigar on which teeth marks showed clearly was regarded as a valuable clue. The butt waas found in an ashtray in the radio bit player's canary-toned apartment.

More than 150 cafe society friends of the slim, attractive 49-year-old woman were rounded up for questioning. They included 70 men whose names were found in six address books discovered in the West 57th st., apartment.

Commr. Wallander said the short, fat, bald man was found in one book. He said the man, a prosperous business leader who is married and the father tf two children, has been questioned for hours and that his alibi was being investigated. He had admitted being with the actress Monday night and had given investigators conflicting details, Wallander added.

Mrs. Mannering's nude body was found sprawled between beds, a twice-tied bedsheet twined around her neck and an orange turkish towel crammed down her throat. An autopsy showed that she had been intimate with her killer before she was slain.

Desire to Greet Dad Led Girl From Camp in N. H.

A homesick girl's love for her father whom she hadn't seen for two months, prompted 13-year-old Nadia Ann Evans, daughter of Robley D. Evans, world-famous nuclear physicist, to hitch-hike to Boston in the hopes of seeing her dad as he arrived from England.

This solution to the disappearance of the young Belmont girl from the exclusive Tabor Camp in Wilmot, N. H., which ended when the blonde-haired jean-clad youngster was found sitting on a park bench in Boston Common, was offered today by her father.

Expressing delight that Nadia was found as soon and in such good physical condition, Prof. Evans said:

"We are satisfied that the true version of what happened is that she was desirious o fseeing me. She had not seen me for six weeks and knew I was coming home from Europe. Maybe there was a tinge of homesickness, too. At any rate, it was the result of a childish whim. She is only 13, and frequently children of that ago go off the beam and act on impulse. She wanted to see me and, as she had no money, it was necessary for her to make the trip hitchhiking!

"Our desire now is to have her get a complete rest so she can get over the shock of what she did not anticipate—bringing down the world on her head. I do not wish her to discuss it at this time with anyone, as I on't want her to feel that she has smashed the world up—that she has done too much harm. I think any further questioning of her would further uset her."

For 36-hours State Police of both New Hampshire and Massachusetts pressed their search for Nadia while she glibly thumbed her way back to Boston over heavily traveled highways.

Only once was she seen and that was the shortest ride she received — from the outskirts of the camp to Lake Sunapee in New Hampshire, a distance of 10 miles.

At the Massachusetts General

NADIA EVANS
Belmont Girl Found Safe

Hospital where she has been confined since a few hours after being found, young Nadia spent a very restful night and enjoyed her first full meals since she left the camp. She ate a hearty breakfast and regained several hours of lost sleep.

Dr. W. S. Thorndike, asst. director of the hospital, reported the young girl was still very tired but was in good health. He said she would remain at the hospital for several days.

The strange end to the disappearance came a few minutes after a knapsack belonging to the girl was found at the Boston Common. A neighbor, whose name has not been yet divulged, accompanied the Evans family to the Common and while they were inspecting garments found in the knapsack, she noticed Nadia sitting on a park bench near the Solders' Monument.

So as not to create any excitement, this woman walked over to Nadia and suggested that she return to Belmont with her. Later she contacted the Evans family and brought the girl to the hospital.

The search for the young girl centered around Boston after Raymond Martin, of Danbury, N. H., a farmer and horse dealer, told police of giving a girl hitch-hiker resembling the Evans girl, a ride toward Newbury, close to Lake Sunapee.

Martin told police that his young blonde passenger had a knapsack, wore a dark-faced wrist watch, and had a pimple under her left eye.

Police believe that she received another ride to Boston and stopped off there to change her clothing.

The knapsack was found on the Common by Mario Giamxam, 19, of Margaret st., North End, about 2:45 p. m. and clothing in it identified by Prof. Evans.

Her father, who is a professor at M. I. T., had arrived home from London by plane Tuesday only a few hours before the family was notified of Nadia's disappearance. He had been abroad since last May.

Camp Tabor, to which Nadia went less than two weeks ago, is an exclusive camp for children from 6 to 14. From girl chums at the camp it was learned that Nadia was not altogether content there and had several times mentioned that she was going to "take a trip" to Boston.

Truman Will Veto New Tax Cut Bill Senate Vote Due

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—President Truman said today that he will veto the new Republican $4,000,000,000 income tax reduction bill. He made this statement to a news conference shortly before the Senate began consideration of the legislation already passed overwhelmingly by the House.

The President said he didn't see why there should be any change in his attitude since it is the same tax measure as the one he vetoed before, except for a different effective date.

Mr. Truman first disclosed his decision on the tax bill which would become effective Jan. 1 to Sen. Barkley, the Senate Democratic leader.

Barkley, asked what his attitude will be when the bill comes up on the Senate floor, said he was opposed to it and would fight it on the floor.

Asked if a second veto could be sustained in the Senate, Barkley said "I hope so."

The measure was approved, 10-3, by the Senate Finance Committee yesterday with Barkley, and Sens. Lucas (D.) of Illinois and Connally (D.) of Texas opposing it.

The bill comes up on the Senate floor for consideration today.

CIO Sees High Bracket Tax Cut Bringing Crash

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—The CIO declared today there will be a crash like that of 1929 if Congress gives "first priority to reducing taxes upon high income brackets and corporations."

Stanley Ruttenberg, CIO economist, said that instead of an overall tax cut there should be vital revisions in the tax structure to "promote and to sustain our national economy at maximum employment, production and purchasing power."

Ruttenberg outlined CIO's tax program as follows:

1—An increase in personal exemptions, rather than reduction of tax rates on individual incomes.

2—Elimination of excise taxes, except those of a regulatory nature.

3—Closing of such tax loopholes as mandatory joint returns, capital gains and tax-exempt securities.

4—More effective taxation of estates and gifts.

5—Taxation of undistributed profits and excess profits of corporations, with necessary safeguards for small business.

Greek Crisis May Wreck U. S. Aid Plan

By JOHN A. REICHMANN

WASHINGTON, July 10 (INS)—State Dept. officials today centered their attention on developments in Greece where the crisis created by Communist elements may threaten the entire Grek aid program under the Truman doctrine.

Officials believed the crisis also may complicate developments before the UN where the Greek border dispute comes up for consideration.

No doubt existed in the minds of responsible officials that the Athens arrests, inspired reportedly by a threatened uprising of Communist elements, was directly related to both the Truman aid program and the UN controversy.

Greek Foreign Minister Tsaldaris, who conferred on the overall Greek situation at the State Department yesterday, declared that there had been many rumors of Communist plots before he left Athens to attend the present UN Security Council meeting.

Primrose Path Girls Win Beauty Contest

MONTREAL, July 10—Uneasy is the head that wears a crown and there was no exception to this in the cases of two shapely Quebec girls who were picked as beauty queens in a contest staged recently in an East End night club.

For the girls, crowned as Miss Montreal and Miss Quebec City to compete in a provincial beauty contest scheduled for July 21, were disclosed to have police records for treading the primrose path.

So beneath their crowns today they had headaches. But there were headaches for others, too.

There was considerable fog surrounding the manner in which the girls entered the contest and there was some question, too, as to who staged it and why.

It was supposedly sponsored by Richard Gauthier, who heads the League of Public Welfare, which is engaged in an active drive against immorality in this city.

Composed mainly of hotel owners, the league has pledged itself to aid police in cleaning up the city and seeing that night clubs are conducted in an orderly manner. It had its inception in the Sacred Heart League, which is also conducting a drive against immorality.

A member of the League of Public Welfare was said by the girls to have approached them and asked them to enter the contest.

Both questioned the possibility of their winning because of their police records but claimed the man told them they had only to get themselves long dresses, bathing suits and a hair-do and then do as he told them.

Apparently he knew the answers for they wo nthe titles hands down and posed prettily for pictures in their long dresses and identifying sashes. Then the storm broke.

A French language newspaper published their pictures but beside each they placed a rouge's gallery photograph of the two titlists.

Police records showed Miss Montreal had been convicted 10 times between 1941 and 1943 for being "found in" disorderly houses.

Miss Quebec City's record showed three charges of vagrancy and loitering. She was at liberty in $200 bail when she walked off with the title.

Maid as Bay State Voter Campaigned for Ingalls

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 10 (AP)—Dora Jones was a registered voter in Massachusetts, she stated in testimony which continues today at the federal court slavery trial of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls, and actively electioneered for Ingalls as a candidate for the State Legislature.

The 58-year-old Negro maid who the Ingalls are charged with holding in bodage for years under threats of jail and dammation, said her campaign activities included passing out cards and litrature.

She testified under cross-examination, that she could not remember if she had also been a registered voter in Washington, D. C., where the government alleges she was seduced at about the age of 20 by Mrs. Ingalls' first husband, Walter Harmon.

Guilty fear resulting from the alleged intimacies with Harmon, the government maintains, was the "psychological whip" held over her.

The small Negress, who displayed her hands to the jury in support of the charge of slave toil, told over again of working in Lynn and Boston and of vacations during one or the other of Mrs. Ingalls' marriages in Bar Harbor, Me.; Rutland, Vt.; Fall River, Mass., and in New Hampshire.

Mrs. Ingalls declined an offer by Judge Weinberger to examine Dora's outstretched hands, replying, "No, thank you, I seen them a great many years."

Pope Views Television Then Poses

By MICHAEL CHINIGO

VATICAN CITY, July 10 (INS)—Pope Pius XII witnessed his first radio television program and 10 minutes later was the subject of a telecast himself.

The Vatican program began with cast of the Sistine Choir rendering choral music by the Pope's 16th century ancestor, Asprilio Pacelli.

His Holiness sat by the desk in his private library and watched with lively interest as the program appeared on the television screen set up before him.

At the end of the chorale, the Holy Father was "invited" into the adjoining consistory where the technical apparatus was set up.

Repeatedly he leaned toward the television screen, and remarked:

"It's marveleus. It's marveleus."

At the end of the program, he commented:

"With all these inventions, who knows where we will end up?"

He presented silver consistory memorial medals to Joseph Biondo of New York City, program director; Richard Hooper of Philadelphia, RCA public relations director, and technicians Michael Ranelli and Charles Villalvazo, both of New York City.

Television cameras followed the Pope as he examined each piece of equipment.

The function of the equipment was explained to him, and the Holy Father said:

"It's amazing—the American technical progress and achievement."

Deadly Detonators Stir Yacht Murder Court Scene

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS

(Noted writer and novelist whose father, the late Earl Rogers, was regarded as one of the nation's greatest criminal trial lawyers.)

SANTA ANA, Cal., July 10—Inanimate objects gave tongue—the clangor of them filled the courtroom like muffled bells tolling a death knell.

From the counsel table, from the witness box, from the clerk's desk, they bore witness as people's exhibits that George Rector Gollum and Beulah Louise Overell beat to death the girl's mother and father and set dynamite for an explosion to wipe out all evidence of the crime.

Before us were five unexploded detonators, little objects attached to a card identifying them as those that betrayed the hand that set them in the hold of the Mary E. to do their awful work, five unexploded detonators that Fire Chief Frank W. Crocker told us he found below the engine room hatch of the Mary E.

If they had exploded, those five little caps, we wouldn't be in this courtroom today trying to find out who set them to destroy the Mary E. and all aboard. There wouldn't have been enough left of the Mary E. to investigate. There wouldn't have been the copper caps like spent fire crackers, of the two which did go off. There wouldn't have been the round time clock buried in debris nor the detonator wires attached to the battery, nor the poor old ship's clock forever stopped at 11:46. There wouldn't have been enough left of Mr. and Mrs. Overell to know whether they had circular marks on their heads or basal skull fractures or not.

If they had gone off the way detonators are supposed to do, if the five had exploded the way their two little brothers did, the state charges that a perfect crime would have been committed.

Mr. Otto Jacobs, chief counsel for Louise Overell, didn't like those unexploded detonators a little bit. From as far away as he could get over against the clerk's desk, Mr. Jacobs boomed a deep-voiced protest. They shouldn't be allowed around loose, he said, and even when good-looking young Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Dietz insisted an explosives expert had assured him they were perfectly safe if carefully handled, Mr. Jacobs continued not to like them.

Nobody moved for minutes. Judge Kenneth Morrison, with a little smile, took them, examined them. He said he didn't think we need be afraid of them. The jury passed them from hand to hand without fear, carefully, studiously. They were handling death that hadn't gone off and they knew it.

But Mr. Jacobs left the courtroom and didn't come back again during the morning session.

Throngs Cheer Elizabeth Following Her Engagement

By HOWARD BERRY

LONDON, July 10 (INS)—Princess Elizabeth of Britain, wearing an engagement ring of dazzling diamonds, was cheered wildly today when she appeared in public for the first time following announcement of her engagement to wed. Her fiance, Lt. Philip Mountbatten, was not present when she drove with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth from Buckingham Palace at noon to take part in a memorial commemoration at Westminster Abbey. But the couple joined later in a luncheon with the King and Queen.

The heiress-apparent to the throne was cheered by crowds both when she left the palace and when she arrived at the Abbey.

Friends who congratulated Princess Elizabeth received the reply:

"We are very, very happy."

On her visit to the Abbey the Princess wore a coffee-colored suit with matching hat and brown and white shoes.

With the King, Queen and Princess were Queen Mother Mary, the Duchess of Kent and the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, Prime Minister Attlee and cabinet ministers, as well as members of the diplomatic service.

Elizabeth was up early despite her late night stay at a party to read the letters from friends.

Palace officials emphasized that the marriage date, the honeymoon itinerary and the question of a title for Lt. Mountbatten all are unsettled. But it seemed probable the marriage would be in the fall and that the first portion oof the honeymoon would take place in the English countryside.

At the same time it was emphasized that the greatest precautions were being taken to avoid striking a discordant note in Britain's grim economic situation, and there is a possibility that the couple will not go abroad until they journey with the King and Queen next spring on an official visit to Australia.

It is regarded as certain that Princess Margaret, sister of Elizabeth, will be the chief bridesmaid, with the Hon. Pamela Mountbatten, Philip's cousin, another.

Authoritative sources said Elizabeth would retain the surname of Windsor and that any children would be princes and princesses of the Royal House of Windsor.

Court circles indicated Elizabeth's wedding gown would be classical, with a long train woven of all-British material and having a priceless veil of Point De Flandres lace loaned by Queen Mother Mary, the same as the princess' mother wore in 1923.

The British public rejoiced over the formal announcement of the long-expected engagement.

Princess Hit by Curbs

Rations Present Trousseau Problem

LONDON, July 10 (AP)—There won't be any buying spree for Princess Elizabeth when she gets ready her trousseau—unless Britain's clothes rationing scheme is lifted before then. And, like so many other newly-weds, it's likely the young royal couple may have to "live with mother."

Coupons, the housing shortage, lack of domestic ware, furnishings and bed linen, will probably hit Britain's number one engaged couple as it does the humblest of her future subjects. And, like many of her generations, she'll probably depend a good deal for her luxuries on the generosity of friends abroad.

Throughout the war years and until the royal family went to South Africa, the princess lived on the same coupon allocation as any other British girl. Again and again Princess Elizabeth attended functions in the same ensemble—with new coupon-free hats to ring the changes.

When gifts of shoes or stockings were given from British firms, the royal family was scrupulous to surrender coupons in exchange.

It is unlikely in these days when production problems are as bad as they've ever been, and when the glare of publicity is on the bethrothed couple, that any extra coupon allocation will be granted.

Like everybody else, lizabeth must make her ration coupons last until the end of September. Like everybody else, she'll be wondering how many will be allowed for the next period—and just how long they'll have to last. And she'll have to be much more careful than girls in whom reporters aren't interested not to infringe any regulations.

Clothes for the royal tour to South Africa were classed as "for export only," and the royal princesses had their first opportunity to buy as they liked. But unless the honeymoon is to be abroad, it is unlikely that the same license will be taken by the princess.

Most British girls, many of whom hire wedding dresses from a film studio, are wondering today what the Princess will do about her wedding dress. Restrictions have brought in a 1947 fashion for brides to wear their mother's wedding gown—or their great-great-grandmother's. With the London Museum filled with royal clothes through the ages, Princess Elizabeth might have a good choice.

There's a shortage in royal residences just as much as in flats in London.

The Princess's childhood home off Hyde Park Corner was blitzed and the site has been rented. Clarence House and St. James's Palace both need much renovation before they would be convenient today.

The newlyweds probably will begin married life in a wing of Buckingham Palace, with probably a country house of their own—an eeasier problem these days when so many "stately homes of England" have come onto the market.

As for Lt. Philip Mountbatten, his clothes problems are simpler.

"He's lucky," smiled a Fleet st. photographer in a worn, pre-war suit. "He can add to his wardrobe with his shirts and things at the navay officers' shop.

Sidney S. Conrad Succumbs at 81

Sidney S. Conrad, 84, chairma of tne board of Conrad & Co., Inc., died this morning at his home in Marblehead.

Mr. Conrad was appointed to the Boston City Planning Board in 1927 by Mayor Nichols and was reappointed in 1932 by Mayor James M. Curley. He took an active interest and was instrumental in the development of highway traffic to Boston's business districts.

Mr. Conrad also served as president of the Boston Retail Trade Board.

HELD—Anne Johnson, 32, is being held by New York police on a charge of homicide in connection with the death of a blond baby boy whose body was found floating off Long Island. Laundry marks on blankets wrapped around the infant led police to the apartment of the woman.

Mate Hunted In Woman's Trunk Murder

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., July 10 (AP)—Police were searching today for Morley V. King, San Luis Obispo restaurant operator whose wife was found slain in a trunk here.

Sheriff Murray C. Hathway said the body had been positively identified as that of Mrs. Helen King, formerly of Pacoima, a Los Angeles suburb. Identification was made through dental bridgework and through personal effects found with the corpse.

King, sought for questioning, has been missing since Tuesday. King's automobile also is gone, the sheriff said.

The woman's body was found under the annex of a hotel where King operated his restaurant.

President Backs Missouri VA

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—President Truman today endorsed legislation to create a Missouri Valley Authority.

He told a news conference, however, that he favored the bill along with a comprehensive flood control program for the whole Midwest and the central part of the country.

German Girl Jailed For Phoning U. S. Wife

FRANKFURT, Ger., July 10 (AP)—Anne Marie Brenneis, 19, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined 500 marks ($50) today for malicious mischief in making embarrassing telephone calls to the home of a U. S. Army officer.

The comely German girl was convicted by an American military government court of having told the officer's wife that she was a close friend of the officer and that he had stood her up on a date

Sen. Baldwin Seeking Quick GI Bond Vote

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Senator Baldwin, (R.) of Connecticut, said today he hopes to bring House-approved legislation to permit cashing of terminal leave bonds before the Senate next week.

He said he will ask the full Armed Services Committee to approve the bill at the earliest opportunity, possibly at a meeting scheduled for 6:30 p. m., today.

The bill, which has the backing of the Republican leadership, would permit the cashing any time after Sept. 1 of $1,800,000,000 worth of bonds held by 8,000,000 veterans, the vast majority ex-enlisted men.

Baldwin heads a subcommittee which gave tentative approval to the measure within an hour and a half after hearings opened. The House passed it Monday, 386 to 0.

Baldwin said formal approval by his group awaits only the endorsement of Sen. Wilson (R.) of Iowa, who was not present Baldwin and the third member, Sen. Maybank (D.) of South Carolina said they are in favor of the House bill.

The bonds were issued last year after Congress voted to compensate enlisted men for unused leave time which they piled up in service. Under that bill officers, who previously received cash payments when they left the service, also were paid thereafter in bonds.

The bonds, bearing two and one-half per cent interest, mature in five years from the date issued. Under the House proposal they might still be held for that length of time if the veteran chooses.

The amounts of the bonds vary widely according to the amount of accrued leave each soldier had when he left the service, but the average is $214.

SELF DENIAL

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 10 (AP)—A young man applied to Hamilton Holt, supervisor of the Veterans Administration office, for $10,000 in GI insurance and explained it was a new policy, not reinstatement he was asking.

"Been in the Army Bud?" Holt inquired.

"Yup, three years."

"Mind telling me how you avoided Army high pressure drives during that period?" Holt continued.

"That was easy; I was the insurance officer," came the reply.

last rites to the mayor in the same hospital.

At the Curley summer home, Mrs. Gertrude Dennis Curley was ordered to bed in a prostrate condition. "She just couldn't take it any longer and she collapsed," said Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelly, the mayor's daughter who has taken charge of the family's affairs. She visited her brother briefly at the hospital.

It was she who made the decision to notify her father of George's critical illness. "I believe it is better that father learn of George's sickness from us rather than some other source. We were afraid of the effect the shock might have if he learned of it some other way," said Mrs. Donnelly.

She telephoned the chaplain at the prison where her father is serving a six to 18-month sentence on mail fraud charges.

According to another member of the family at the Scituate summer place, Mrs. Leo F. Curley, the mayor's health is on the decline. She said her father-in-law wrote them that he is losing weight at the rate of nearly a pound a day.

He added in his letter, she said, that he has made some good friends at Danbury—"Chaucer, Shakespeare, Moore and Lamb," the authors.

George Curley first took sick last Thursday, Mrs. Donnelly said. He complained of a pain in his chest which proved to be pleurisy, she said, and his condition continued to grow worse.

Dr. Schott visited him several times and when it was learned that pneumonia had developed, an ambulance was ordered and he was carried out of the house.

George has been a familiar figure at public gatherings where he represented his father in the past two years. He graduated from Andover Academy and Holy Cross in '41. He served in the Navy for four years, two of them as a lieutenant on a sub-chaser in the Pacific.

Crippled Girl, 12, Vows To Become Nun If Cured

PARIS, July 10 (INS)—Plucky Sally Ann O'Leary, 12, crippled since birth, confidently announced, "I'll become a nun when I'm cured."

The Pittsburgh girl will leave Paris for the miraculous shrine at Lourdes today. Meanwhile, her mother revealed that a bath in water from Lourdes saved the child's life shortly after her birth.

Co-operatives Called Menace To Business

Special to Boston evening American

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10—A warning that consumer co-operatives are a menace to the American profit systemwas voiced today by Benn Kay, advertising director of the Milwaukee Sentinel.

Speaking before a convention of the National Advertising Executives Ass'n in San Francisco, Kay maintained that the co-operatives, credited with doing $13,000,000 of America's business in 1946, should bear the brunt of State and Federal income tax, from which they are now, mainly exempt, on the theory their profits are returned to individual purchasers who belong to them.

"From this," he said, "it may be just as logical to argue that the corporation which distributes a dividend to its investors should be exempt from paying an income tax on the sum of that dividend distribution."

The fact that the growing consumer co-operative movement is now a serious problem to American businessmen was brought out by NAEA President James W. Egan, Jr., of Toledo, speaking at a luncheon meeting of the San Francisco Advertising Club.

The ad executives, ending their three-day convention today, will meet in January at Chicago.

STILL BUZZING

CHICAGO, July 10 (AP)—Mrs. Fred Schultz is having no success in evicting a swarm of bees from a bedroom of her six-room north side apartment.

When she failed to get them out she notified her landlord. He called the city health department and officials there notified police.

Two detectives with a bee expert went to the apartment. Use of cyanide gas was suggested. Then it was learned that if the gas fumed the three families in the apartment would have to vacate for 24 hours.

B. C. Forbes Sees No Depression

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—B. C. Forbes, publisher of Forbes' business magazine, said today he sees no sign of an economic recession or a depression.

"If we do draw down upon our heads anything like an acute depression, it will be entirely man-made, inexcusable," Forbes said in a statement prepared for the joint congressional committee on the economic report.

Forbes urged the committee and Congress to take all possible steps to encourage saving and investing.

Police Abandon Hunt For Quincy Lawyer

Convinced that John W. Savage, 38, former Quincy City Council president, is still alive, police today abandoned their search for him and halted dragging operation of Fort Point Channel in Boston.

For a time, police feared Savage might have fallen into the Fort Point Channel since his car, with keys in the ignition, was found on the Summer st. bridge on July 4 and there was no trace of the Quincy political leader.

Capt. George W. Fallon, head of the Quincy detective bureau, said today that his two-day investigation had convinced him that neither suicide nor foul play was involved but that Savage had disappeared "for reasons best known to himself."

Savage's wife, Capt. Fallon said, told him that a note found addressed to her was not in their apartment on Saturday noon when she went there for clothing, but was found later.

This led police to believe that Savage had been in the apartment sometime after abandoning his car on the Summer st. bridge.

Rented 12 Apartments to 56, Goes to Jail

LOS ANGELES, July 10 (AP) —A 44-count grand theft complaint was filed today against Sam Murman, 65, builder, charging that he accepted $39,060 in the rental of 12 apartment units to 56 different persons.

Murman, who voluntarily went to jail after telling police he feared he might be assaulted by some of his alleged victims, was accused of accepting advance rentals ranging from $720 to $900 from each of 44 persons who could not be accommodated in his new apartment house.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

MUCH OF HISTORY is the record of good intentions ending in astounding errors. The Marshall Plan gives the appearance, at this stage, of having been conceived in charity and good-will, but inevitably having produced a whopper of an historical error, the correction of which may not be possible.

It started with a speech at Harvard on June 5 in which Sec. of State George Marshall said:

". . . Any assistance that this government may render in the future should provide a cure rather than a mere palliative.

"Any government that is willing to assist in the task of recovery will find full co-operation, I am sure, on the part of the United States government. Any government which maneuvers to block the recovery of other countries cannot expect help from us. Furthermore, governments, political parties or groups which seek to perpetuate human misery in order to profit therefrom politically or otherwise will encounter the opposition of the United States."

That is obviously a firm promise. Sec. Marshall is sure, you will note. He does not say how much. He does not describe the nature of the assistance. He merely says that we shall assist a certain type of nation and oppose another type.

So far this is in conformity with the Truman Doctrine, although it is a rejection of Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam at which the Big Three made no such fine distinctions. At that time, we spoke only of "peace-loving" nations, meaning Soviet Russia but not Switzerland.

GEORGE MARSHALL sets up a European modus operandi by saying further:

". . . It would be neither fitting nor efficacious for this government to undertake to draw up unilaterally a program designed to place Europe on its feet economically. This is the business of the Europeans. The initiative, I think, must come from Europe. The role of this country should consist of friendly aid in the drafting of a European program and of later support of such a program so far as it may be practical for us to do so. The program should be a joint one, agreed to by a number, if not all European nations."

Bevin of England and Bidault of France immediately accepted that as a promise, a guarantee and an invitation to go ahead. They called a conference, and included the Russians. The latter wisely wanted to know precisely what the Americans intended to do, but that no one could say.

The most that the Secretary of State could offer was a proposal to Congress for an appropriation, estimated to be $5,000,000,000 a year, more or less, for a number of years, which Congress might or might not agree to do.

Certainly, the present Congress is not likely to make any such appropriation on Mr. Truman's or Mr. Marshall's say-so without further and profound investigation.

This the Russians understood and they estimated that it would not go through. The British must grasp at any straw because they are so short of dollars and Socialism in that country is inadequately productive.

NOW, the good intentions in all this lies in the necessity of aiding Great Britain, France, Italy and other European countries that are willing to avoid Communism at home and subservience to Soviet Russia.

The error lies in the method of doing it. Instead of determining "what the creditor" country can and will do and stipulating the terms and conditions of aid, Marshall set up a debtors' conference to gang up on the creditor or to stipulate such conditions as the creditor could not meet, which, in the end, will justify their assumption of a promise given and not kept.

Sec. Marshall might have been warned by the history of the relations between this country and Europe since World War I. He chose to assume that he had a device which would work because of Europe's desperation.

Actually, European politicians are never desperate because they can always resort to revolution and Communism. Only the United States is desperate because this country wants peace and production. Europe is prepared to make us pay her price for peace and production—any price we can be got to pay.

This lack of understanding of European history got George Marshall into his present trouble.

10 Reveals Changes In Race Relations

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 10 (AP)—Substantial and lasting changes in race relations in America have been achieved within the last 10 years, Executive Secretary Lester B. Granger of the National Urban League said today at the institute of race relations at Fisk University.

Noting their improved status in politics and suffrage, industry and labor, Granger said more than a million Negroes were introduced into industry for the first time during the war.

"This," he declared, "is the most lasting achievement that has occurred in the last decade, and there is every reason to believe that this gain will endure."

PILOT AT 70

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 10 (AP)—You're never too old to learn, figures 70-year-old William Dunn who is taking flying lessons and recently went up on his first solo flight.

Dunn, a retired hardware merchant of Zollarsville, Washington County, started the lessons last fall.

"It was just about the happiest day I've had in a long long time," the grey-haired, bespectacled Dunn said, describing his solo flight.

Dunn said he plans to buy a plane of his own when he completes the flying course.

OPIUM SMUGGLERS FOILED

NEW YORK, July 10 (INS)—A cache of raw opium valued at $100,000 was seized by customs officers aboard the Victory ship Francis C. Harrington when it docked at Brooklyn from Rouen, France.

5 Girls Watch Planes For Japanese Beetles

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—Five attractive, sharp-eyed young ladies were stationed at the gates of LaGuardia Field—to keep Japanese beetles from boarding airplanes.

The young women, employed by the Agriculture Dept. will scan outgoing passengers for any beetles clinging to their clothing—and simply flick off any they see. It's to keep the pest from spreading to U. S. areas not infested.

Jailer of Sister Held by Sherriff

MILWAUKEE, July 10 (AP)—Arthur Boelke, 54, was arrested today on a charge of illegally imprisoning his 67-year-old sister in a locked shack on Boelke's farm in Milwaukee County.

Capt. James Flatley of the sheriff's department said officers investigating an anonymous letter concerning the sister, Edna Boelke, found the woman locked in a stifling shack—its one window boarded up—the floor littered with bits of torn newspapers and furnished only with a couch and a bed without a mattress.

Flatley quoted Boelke as saying he had been appointed his sister's guardian after she was declared mentally incompetent in county court a year ago. He said she feared being sent to an institution and begged him to take care of her and that he had tried to give her "every comfort."

Veterans Clash With Leftists on Training

By DAN MARKEL
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 10—Rep. Harry L. Towe, (R.) of New Jersey today introduced a House Armed Services Committee bill on universal military training as veterans' organizations clashed with Left-Wing groups.

The committee bill calls for a six-months' basic training program under civilian supervision for all youths between the age of 18 and 20 years, and additional advance instruction in defense through any one of a number of options.

The measure closely follows recommendations of the Compton Commission.

Citing that the U. S. Constitution imposes on Congress a duty to "provide for the common defense," the bill embodies three major principles, its preamble declares. They are:

1—"Every male person residing in the U. S. owes to our country an obligation to undergo training which will fit him to contribute to its protection in time of emergency."

2—"Adequate preparedness will prevent wars against this country and the needless sacrifice of human life."

3—"A citizenry trained for defense is the bulwark of democracy and the keystone of preparedness and can best be assured through youth training for national security."

Universal military training is a "must," the American Legion told the House Armed Services committee in the day.

In sharp contrast the Socialist Party of America, Young Progressive Citizens of America, and American Veterans' committee opposed any military training program for the nation's manhood.

Warns Landlords On Rent Boosts

Landlords who are increasing rents 15 per cent without first obtaining signed leases from their tenants are in danger of facing treble damage suits, William F. Riley, area rent control officer, declared today.

Reilly's statement came after his office had received numerous complaints from tenants that their rents were being raised without their consent and without any written leases. He had no idea how many violations had been reported, but said his office was making a detailed check.

Reilly also said that several of the signed leases properly executed were being received daily, but that there were still hundreds of landlords and tenants who did not realize the full import of the new rent act. His office has been deluged with questions from both the landlords and tenants, he said.

Parolee Loses in Try To Re-enter Reformatory

RICHMOND, Va., July 10 (AP)—A Richmond ex-convict who a federal employe said apparently "didn't like life on the outside" was unsuccessful in his application for readmission to the federal reformatory at Petersburg after one month of freedom.

The 22-year-old man told officials at the reformatory that he believed he had violated a parole pledge to live a temperate life.

GOOD JOB NOW

CAMDEN, N. J., July 10 (AP)—Local No. 1 of the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers put some comfort on the picket line today.

After a mass picketing demonstration by about 3000 members at the strikebound plant of the New York Shipbuilding Corp., the union left six men at the gates—with comfy-looking beach chairs for their use.

Osborn Named State Fish Aide

In one of his official acts as temporary governor, Lt. Gov. Coolidge today appointed Ralph H. Osborn of Boston as director of the marine fisheries division of the state department of conservation.

Osborn succeeds Henry A. Sheehan of Avon, who retired at an annual pension of $2800 in June. Sheehan's retirement was not noted until Osborn's appointment had been submitted to the Governor's Council for approval.

Lt. Gov. Coolidge also appointed Thomas L. Thistle of Melrose, a former member of the state industrial accident board, to serve out the unexpired term of Vernon W. Marr of Scituate, as a member of that board.

Hynes Bars 40-Hr. Work Week Act

Exercising his veto power for the first time since appointed temporary mayor, John B. Hynes returned to the City Council unsigned a legislative act granting city employes a 40-hour work week.

Hynes said the act would not become effective until September and any action taken prior to that time would not be effectual.

He also announced he planned to have a study made of the 40-hour week and how it would affect all city employes, since policemen, firemen and school teachers are exempt from the provisions of the legislation.

Dr. Selig's passion for scholarship knew no bounds. He was about to fall heir to one of the world's great diplomatic secrets, but fell instead for a supple waist and moist lips. Here's a Cosmopolitan story of years ago proudly reprinted as a fiction dividend.

Seymour Cain's Story of Intrigue and Suspense

The Payment

Was His Life a Fair Price?

"Listen," said Jacques Charnier, "the war is over and the myths are beginning. In novels and plays there will be heroes of the underground. But what was heroism? Just fussy details: How much dynamite . . . how long a fuse . . . how fast will the Nazi staff car be going?" Charnier's life had been made up of such details—and to the world he was a hero. Why, then, did France's infallible Secret Service order his death?

Scituate VFW Head Hits Forum

Scituate residents were split today by a dispute between the local VFW commander and leaders of the Town Forum over an "un-American" lecture which led to the VFW banning the Forum from meeting in its hall.

Whether the ban as announced by Commander Ray Zucker of Satuit Post, V. F. W., will stick rested with the trustees of Allen Memorial Library, it was reported. The library's assembly hall is used by the VFW for its quarters and also once a month for Forum gatherings.

Zucker said he was busy on a drive for an iron lung for the town when the lecture on Greece was given by Miss Mary Vardoulakis of New York, a former Wellesley student, and thus was "unaware of un-American activities taking place in our headquarters. As commander of the VFW, swearing allegiance to democratic principles, I declare that activities of such a Communistic nature no longer be allowed in our quarters."

Mrs. Mildred P. Fuller of Kent st., president of the Forum, denied there was a stormy scene following the lecture. She said a group of "out-of-towners" heckled the speaker and monopolized the question period, uttering derogatory remarks against the speaker.

Is it too late to plant Kentucky Wonder beans now?

A—Kentucky Wonder beans can be planted up till about July 1 and mature a good crop. Beans planted after that date had better be bush beans.

Will household DDT spray kill lice on roses?

A—Household DDT will probably kill the roses before it kills the plant lice. Household sprays contain oil which is harmful to plants. The best spray for rose aphids is nicotine sulphate applied once a week.

We have some dahlias that have long sprouts. Can they still be planted?

A—These dahlias can be planted but the shoots must be shaded and protected from wind until they get hardened. These plants have probably lost much of their vitality and will need extra care.

How close should complete fertilizer be put when side dressing plants?

A—As the roots are now getting out into the ground the fertilizer will give best results if placed 5 to 6 inches from the plant.

Will vine crops pollinate without bees?

A—Vine crops must be insect pollinated, but there are usually enough bees present to take care of small plantings so there is nothing to worry about.

Can soil and manure that was used in a hot bed be added to the compost pile?

A—A good place for it. This soil should be high in organic matter and the partially decayed manure will help break down the compost.

OLD SOL DID IT

GREEN BAY, Wis., July 10 (AP)—The shrill note of the shop fire siren interrupted a Milwaukee road staff meeting at which division Supt. F. T. Buechler was congratulating his associates for winning the railroad system's fire prevention trophy.

The sun's rays through a curved read window of the superintendent's inspection car had ignited a flare on a back shelf. Buechler estimated the loss at $15 plus a record of 18 months without a fire.

N. Y. Killing

seen the personable blonde alive. Harvey Marlin, 17-year-old dry cleaner's delivery boy, enabled police to set the time of the crime tentatively between 3 and 3:30 p. m., Tuesday.

The youth said he called at Mrs. Mannering's apartment at 3 p. m. to pick up some dresses. He reported she opened the door only a little way to hand out the garments.

"She wore a pinkish jacket and that's all," the boy told detectives. He added that she instructed him to bring back a blue and white dress, previously sent to the cleaners, at 3:30 p. m. He returned at that hour, Marlin said, and rapped on the door.

The radio was blaring but there was no answer. He waited a little while, knocked again, but left when there was no response.

The body was found at 9:15 a. m. yesterday by a part time maid. The radio was playing loudly when the maid entered the apartment.

An overturned bedlamp was the only evidence of a scuffle in the tastefully decorated suite. The body was face up between the beds, the legs propped up against one of them. Her face and shoulders were bruised and the imprint of a man's ring showed on her chin.

Police eliminated robbery as a motive when two rings, an expensive watch and $52 in cash were found among the victim's belongings.

Deputy Chief Insp. Edward J. Mullins in charge of West Side detectives investigating the slaying said he believed the cleaning boy's call on Tuesday afternoon apparently interrupted the slayer in a pleasant interlude with the victim before he strangled her.

Neighbors said Mrs. Mannering customarily inspected visitors through a peep hole before admitting them to the $87.50-a-month apartment. Mullins added that there was little doubt but that she regarded the man who killed her as a friend.

Comr. Wallander said information on the victim's income was scanty. He added that she had come to New York in 1941 and in 1946 had worked as a bit actress for the National Broadcasting Co. In 1942, he said, she was registered with the costing office of First National Pictures in Hollywood.

Records disclosed she was married in Los Angeles in 1924 to Lawrence Flateau, whom she divorced there in 1943. She was known in films in the 1930s as Bessie True, but police here were unable to learn how she had come by the name of Mrs. Sheila Mannering.

Society Marriage Breakups Depicted in Sunday Advertiser

Having your name in the social register is no guarantee of happiness. This is the keynote for "Heartbreaks of Society," a new series of tragic real-life stories of colorful society personalities, beginning in next Sunday's American Weekly magazine in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Another American Weekly article, "Don't Let Baby Be a Dictator," contains unusual advice for mothers from a writer-mother who argues that proper baby care need not entail the melodramatic self-sacrifice it often does. The writer is Evelyn Barkins, wife of a physician and author of the book, "The Doctor Has a Baby."

Dr. Phyllis Ackerman, of the School for Asiatic Studies in New York, tells the fascinating story of China's centuries-old "sky mountain" in a special American Weekly feature, "Mystery of China's Great Pyramid."

Harriet Evans Sprague Feted

SOME 200 DEBUTANTES and their beaux, many coming back to town from seashore and country resorts, are attending Harriet Evans Sprague's lovely midsummer coming out party this evening.

The affair is a dance at Longwood Cricket Club given by Harriet's mother, Mrs. M. Morton Sprague, of Chestnut Hill, and her uncle, Mr. Eugene E. Morton of Waban. The ushers' dinner, also at the club, is given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dwight Morton of Weston.

A cool and pretty color scheme of pastel green and yellow has been designed for the party decorations. Contrasting with the ballroom's pale green walls are bouquets of Picardy yellow gladiolas and the receiving line is in front of an antique Chinese screen flanked by tall arrangements of yellow flowers. The dinner tables are decorated with yellow gladiolas, talisman and tea roses.

HARRIET GRADUATED last month from Emma Willard School and is a provisional member of the Junior League. For her debut she is wearing a dream of a gown of white nylon net with a very full hoop skirt and drop shoulder neckline. A fern design is embroidered in silver sequins on the front of the bodice and skirt. Her corsage is a spray of pale lavendar orchids. Mrs. Sprague has chosen a gown of aqua crepe and corsage of Eucharis lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Goodspeed of New Jersey and their newly engaged daughter, Elizabeth, are among the out-of-town guests.

The ushers, headed by David Farnsworth, include Benjamin Crocker, Charles and Bronson Fargo, Norman Chandler, James Taylor, Peter Bowman, William White, Samuel Clapp, Wilbur Turner, Michael Robbins, Woody Swope and Richard Ackers.

NOTES FROM a Society Editor's Cuff: Post deb Frances Weselhoeft, who has been studying nursing at Children's Hospital, and her Marlborough st. neighbor, Ellen Shepherd, have left on a motor trip to California and Seattle. Both girls are members of the Vincent Club. One of their post deb friends who has a job in New York, Christina Lowell, is spending her vacation at her parents' summer home in Barn stable.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Nulsen of Hampden, Ct., have joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Prout of Chestnut Hill, for a vacation in the White Mountains. Ken Parker, youthful Boston playwright will have the fun of seeing his new mystery, "Four Flights Up," produced for the first time at the summer theater in Peaks Island, Me., the week after next.

A DAUGHTER, Susan Cutler Mixter, was born July 3 to Mr. and Mrs. James M. E. Mixter (Phebe B. Perry) at Phillips House. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Mixter of Beacon st., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Perry of Cincinnati and Little Boar's Head, N. H.

100 JVA Girls At Lake Camp

One hundred girls, including many Junior Victory Army members, are attending Camp Treasure Island at Winnipesaukee, N. H., every two weeks as the camping season for the Boston Council of Girl Scouts is in full swing.

To help strengthen the international friendship basis of the Girl Scouts, counselors from Holland, Austria, England and Japan and several counselors from all over the United States will attend the camp.

The Larz Anderson estate is the day camp for the scouts and is opened Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 7 through Aug. 14. A hundred girls with their leaders will take part in the hiking, outdoor cooking, crafts, folk dancing, games, songs and flag raising program.

Mrs. Roland Cobb is camp chairman of the Treasure Island camp while the director is Miss Janette Beaver and assistant director is Miss Priscilla Brown. President of the Boston Council of Girl Scouts is Mrs. Harold D. Hodgkinson.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and address to the Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well wrapped in your letter.

Read the next JVA story in Friday's Daily Record.

To Carry Own Fighter Protection

Can Fly Anywhere—Here's the first flight photo of the Army Air Forces' B-36, the world's largest land-based bomber. It has a wingspread of 230 feet, is 163 feet long and is powered by six pusher-type engines. The giant bomber, which could cary an atomic bomb to any inhabited region in the world and return without refueling, is soon to carry a small fighter plane for added protection.

BUREAUCRATIC LAWLESSNESS

NOTHING in the law authorizes or permits the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury Department to issue fiat money.

Section 8 of Article I of the Constitution says:

"THE CONGRESS shall have power . . . to coin money" and "regulate the value thereof."

Nonetheless, the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury have collaborated in issuing fiat money, to which the present evils of inflation are largely due.

An instance of this occurred in 1942, when $660,000,000 of "National Currency" notes were put out by the Federal Reserve Board and were "pumped" into circulation by the Treasury through its borrowings in the Federal Reserve system and member banks.

According to the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy:

"This was outright FIAT MONEY and the procedure followed WAS NOT AUTHORIZED IN ANY LAW.

"The Treasury IMPROPERLY and ILLEGALLY received a deposit on the books of the Federal Reserve banks for the $660,000,000 of 'national currency' turned over to the reserve banks.

"These banks IMPROPERLY and ILLEGALLY added $660,000,000 of FIAT PAPER MONEY to their reserves."

If the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury Department, with their coercive power over the banking institutions of the nation, can do that once, they can do the same thing twice—or fifty times.

NOTHING in the law authorizes or permits the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury Department to levy taxes.

Section 8 of Article I of the Constitution says:

"THE CONGRESS shall have power . . . to levy and collect taxes."

But the Federal Reserve Board has arbitrarily levied a tax on the earnings of the Federal Reserve banks so as to require the payment into the Treasury of ninety per cent of their earnings in excess of operating expenses and fixed dividends.

As to this, the Economists' National Committee On Monetary Policy says:

"An arresting and disturbing aspect of this action by the board is the fact that it, rather than Congress, has decided that a certain percentage of the reserve banks' net earnings shall be paid into the United States Treasury.

"NO LAW authorizes the Reserve Board to determine what percentage of the reserve banks' earnings shall be paid to the United States Treasury.

"THAT IS A MATTER LYING WITHIN THE PROVINCE OF CONGRESS."

NOTHING in the law authorizes or permits the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury Department to confiscate property.

On this point the Economists' National Committee notes:

"The Federal Reserve Banks are owned by the member banks of this country, and it is Congress, not the Reserve Board, that has the authority to determine how their earnings shall be distributed.

"Congress might very well have decided to declare an extra dividend for the member banks—THE OWNERS OF THESE RESERVE BANKS.

"The question also rises as to just what official at the Treasury becomes a party to this transaction BY RECEIVING THE FUNDS paid into the Treasury by the Reserve Board WITHOUT LEGAL AUTHORITY.

"Does an official of the Treasury accept all the money offered it REGARDLESS OF THE FACT THAT IT MAY REPRESENT FUNDS TAKEN IMPROPERLY FROM THE RIGHTFUL OWNERS—in this case the Federal Reserve banks?"

Of course, no dividend can be paid to the owners of the Federal Reserve banks if the Treasury Department has already seized the money belonging to them out of which the dividends might be paid.

Theoretically, if the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury Department can lawlessly confiscate property belonging to the banks, some other bureaucratic branch of the government can confiscate other property belonging to citizens or business concerns.

Except in the mysterious realm of money and credit, this may not happen soon.

Actually, however, CONFISCATION BY INFLATION—by bureaucratic manipulation of finance and credit—is itself a means of progressively confiscating ALL value and ALL property.

The fact is that the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury Department are using the banks of the nation for deficit Federal financing, which floods the market place with printing-press money and excess bank credit or check-book money.

This operation builds up the profits of the reserve banks, of course.

It also vitiates the purchasing power of the dollar—which is to say the pay envelope and dividend checks of the public.

Much do men speak and much do they dream
Of the better coming days;
To some far-off golden gleam
They turn their thoughts always;
And the world grows old and again grows young,
But hope ever dwells among its bowers. —SCHILLER.

WHO WAS THE FIRST man to make the immortal suggestion "an apple a day keeps the doctor away?" Many followed that suggestion and found it to have little or no effect on their well being. The fault it seems, was in the wording of the suggestion. It did not state at what time of the day the apple should be consumed. To be beneficial, the apple should be eaten at night just before retiring. The suggestion should be revised to read: "An apple at night keeps your system working all right."

Jack Norworth

Of course, you know Jack wrote "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," but did you know he was the perpetrator of that tongue twisting ditty titled "Suter Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers"? He also wrote "Mother's Sitting Knitting Little Mittens for the Navy."

DEBUT: Lewis G. Andrews, the old minstrel man, who was born July 17, 1858, in New York City, says he was present the night Lillian Russell made her New York debut at Tony Pastor's. He says the first ditty Lillian sang was "When You and I Were Young Maggie." That was in 1881. Lillian was then fresh from her home town of Clinton, Iowa. She was the first actress to be styled "The American Beauty." It is interesting to note the original holder of this title was a corn-fed beauty from Iowa and not a female of the boyish form variety.

THAT CAMPAIGN—Our bitter campaign No. 8876D, now in the seventh year, continues to get nowhere very fast. In fact, I believe it can be classed as a flop. This campaign is directed against females using names intended for males. This pessimistic comment is inspired by noting there is a musical comedy actress named Hy Hazell. Imagine a female calling herself "Hy." It should be illegal.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q—Did "Diamond Jim" Brady own the thoroughbred named Irish Lad? A—I know Brady didn't own the noble animal you speak of but am not certain who did. Believe it was John E. Madden. "Diamond Jim" owned that great horse Gold Heels. Q—What is the Negro population of New York city? A—According to the most recent estimate it is about 547,000. Q—You seem to have an unusual amount of information on a wide variety of subjects. Is there a sex predetermination method that really works? We have three daughters and would now like to have a couple of sons. A—Your question is a trifle too intimate for this department. However, I understand there are some sex predetermination methods, which while not 100 per cent accurate, have a record of very good results. Ask your physician. If he is a well informed fellow he will know of one of these methods.

ASIDES: Am reliably informed the favorite diversion of Lassie, the film and radio dog, is chasing motorcycles . . . A resident of Glendale, Cal., is named Cuba Isle Fischer . . . Now available is a portable piano that can be taken on train and automobile trips. It weighs 80 pounds . . . Checkup on the jam situation reveals grape jam is the most popular in the U. S. A. It isn't with me. My favorites in the order named are raspberry, strawberry and orange marmalade.

DOG RACES: Am asked if it is a fact most greyhound races are fixed. I do not think so. A little skullduggery creeps into all professional sports on which money is wagered, but the dog races are not above the average in that respect. The dogs run truer to form than the horses. Greyhound race selectors have a higher average of winners than horse pickers. The dogs are honest and have no jockeys to curb their good intentions. To fix a dog race requires the doping of dogs either to pep them up or slow them down. I also understand it is possible to make it easier for dogs in certain post positions to win by a manipulation of the speed of the rabbit.

TALL FELLOW: Ted Evans of London whose height is seven feet, seven inches is the tallest British subject. Mr. Evans is an office worker and does not exploit his height professionally. Exclusive of sideshow performers, who is the tallest United States citizen? That I would like to know.

"Mr. Carney, how'd you like to have me show you around our garden for a couple hours?"

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK, July 10—Many of us will remember the photographs which showed Adolf Hitler's Brown Shirts, big fellows, bulging with muscle, wearing high, square-bill caps with chinstraps and high boots and carrying dog-whips. These were the brutes who raised Hitler to power.

Westbrook Pegler

Many of us will remember also the Roosevelt Brown Shirts who trampled the law in Michigan, Ohio and other states in the days when the CIO was being organized. But there are a multitude, possibly millions, of us who will stubbornly refuse to admit that those goons were Roosevelt Brown Shirts.

Hitler's Brown Shirts were evil brutes. But these pickets of John L. Lewis, then chairman of the CIO and chief of staff of its fighting forces, were represented as underprivileged, horny-handed workmen on strike for the more abundant life. Some of us were briefly taken in but saw through the fraud.

ACTUALLY, there were no strikes at all in this great tide of organized insurrectionary disorders. The great majority of these people wanted to work. But the pickets operated in teams, as Hitler's Brown Shirts did, and a few rioters or insurrectors directed by officers and sergeants with a plan can outnumber a whole community.

They have the advantage of knowing what they intend to do. The unorganized populace does not know friend from foe, has no plan because the initiative is with the rioters and is constantly beaten over the ears with loudspeaker harrangues exhorting it to welcome the rioters as its friends and deliverers.

Surprise. Alarm. Decoy the police to a feint at Maple and Fourth and, when they are on their way and committed, turn loose the real attack at the gear plant across town. Throw bricks and rocks through the quiet home of Mike Swift, a stubborn center of resistance, with threatening notes attached, scattering glass over their bed and the children's cots in the dead of night.

"Join up or we will cut little Mike's ears off and mail them to you in a box!"

"Mrs. Swift: Your husband is a rat and a scab and a traitor to the working people. If you value the lives of your children, heed this warning!"

WE ALL THOUGHT this was simply terrible in Germany. But when it happened in our own country few of our people saw the parallel.

Those military forerunners of our Army combat teams were not employees of those plants which they attacked. We had adopted a national law forbidding employers to import strike-breakers across state lines, but this was strictly a New Deal law intended to cripple the defense and favor Roosevelt's Brown Shirts in the field.

Therefore the importation of picket teams, and captains and colonels of the goons, from a front in Pennsylvania to a front in Michigan, or from the Communist headquarters in New York to any active front was not forbidden.

The pickets were professionals or revolutionary zealots who fight for the joy of blood-letting and the exciting sounds of frightened or angry cries, hissing flames and crashing glass. Some were just paid mercenaries and freebooters.

LIKE HITLER'S Brown Shirts, they wore uniforms, too. There are many spools of old movies, shot from factory windows and places across the street, showing the method of those riots and showing the uniform fore-and-aft caps worn for recognition in combat. These caps bore a union device and the officers of the teams wore distinctive piping on theirs. It was a militarized insurrection.

But, in Michigan, Frank Murphy, then Governor and now a justice of the Supreme Court, flinched in the presence of these mobs, or did a Quisling. And, in Washington, Roosevelt told me all this was just multiple assault, multiple disorderly conduct, multiple malicious mischief, each case to be investigated and prosecuted by itself.

But meanwhile the goons would vanish. Then would a small town stand the expense of requisitioning and deporting 500 defendants from Oregon, California and New York, and the cost of legal appeals, just to try them for threatening language, throwing stones, tipping over automobiles and punching humble citizens?

TRUE, we couldn't "do business with Hitler," but who could trust Roosevelt after he said that? Roosevelt knew his stuff and Murphy was a New Deal Governor and these were New Deal goons. Lewis was their gauleiter and Roosevelt was their fuehrer. They created the CIO as an auxiliary of Roosevelt's party, and from the CIO there issued the Political Action Committee. They contributed insuperable millions for the party funds which elected Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 10 — Between croquet tournaments at his beach house, Darryl Zanuck tipped me off to Linda Darnell's next picture after she returns from Europe. It's "Walls of Jericho," the Paul Wellman novel about a Kansas lawyer who marries the wrong woman.

Linda Darnell

You can bet that Linda won't be the drab wife. After "Forever Amber" Missy Darnell is expected to be Miss Glitterpuss of 1947—so she'll play the beautiful "other woman."

I don't know any girl who has developed in personality and sophistication as Linda has this past year. She used to be such a mousey miss—beautiful but uninteresting. Now, reports from European capitals she has visited are that she has been a dazzler. Maybe "Forever Amber" or new, new blonde hair—turned the trick.

IF YOU DON'T THINK that J. Arthur Rank is smart, listen to this. In January he goes to South Africa, Mexico and New Zealand. This he told me over a cup of tea in my garden.

"I want to know the people with whom I do business," he said. "You can't do business satisfactorily with anyone without knowing what they are like."

"Does that mean," I couldn't resist asking him, "that you are out to corner the world film market?" Remembering that when he took over the English mills, he controlled 10 per cent of the flour in England, and now he controls 90 per cent.

Rank is a very able citizen, and believe me, our big boys, for the first time in their lives, are meeting with a foeman worthy of their steel. England is fighting tooth and nail to keep American pictures out, say what you will. What do we do? We lay down the red carpet for foreign competition. Who can say whether we're right or wrong.

Socially, Mr. Rank is one of the most charming men I've ever met, but oh, boy, what a smart cookie.

I WISH Robert Cummings luck. I've only known a few actors who have successfully directed themselves in a movie. But, of course, it has been done and maybe Bob will succeed.

Bob and his associates, Philip Yordan and Eugene Frenke, have bought a treatment on Dumas' novel, "Chevalier de Maison Rouge," and Cummings will both star in it, and direct the opus.

Charlie Chaplin and the late Douglas Fairbanks came as close as anyone to taking on this dual chore successfully, and Bob Montgomery did a good job on "Lady in the Lake." But the argument is still open that most stars do better with a man behind the camera to tell them where they are wrong.

Before Bob gets going on this stint, he'll take a rest. He's earned it after four movies in a row.

IF FINDING Maria San Marco in Kansas City is a publicity stunt for "Sleep My Love," I am bitterly disappointed in Buddy Rogers and Ralph Cohn.

Cohn assured me, on his life, that it wasn't a publicity stunt when I questioned him about the disappearance of the young girl—but when the Eurasian beauty was found in Kansas City not far from Olathe, Buddy's home town, I became suspicious. When they took John Calvert, the hypnotist and actor who is in the picture, to see if he could help her, then I felt there was something that just didn't ring true.

The police wisely didn't wait until Buddy and Calvert arrived. The lady came home on a Constellation.

DEBORAH KERR is marvelous in "Black Narcissus" and the color and scenery is out of this world, but dear, oh dear, what have you done to us, J. Arthur Rank—you who have given us many good pictures? This picture ends on a disappointing note.

If we haven't faith, what have we got in this world? There was something wrong with the earthy note of the nuns who gave up their lives to help others. There wasn't a happy or contented nun in the whole crowd and that isn't true. I have never seen one of these women who made the supreme sacrifice unhappy.

Deborah Kerr

Technically the picture is perfect, but it has no heart and we need heart, faith and a supreme belief in our God today.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: I can scarcely believe it is true that a certain newspaper person threatened to have Joan Crawford's children taken away from her, because that person didn't get the scoop on the break up of Joan and Don "Red" Barry. How petty can you get?

Joan is, above all, a wonderful mother. She's brought up the two older children beautifully, and she is completely devoted to the two new babies.

The fact that I happened to get the scoop that the cowboy actor had not yet paid for the fabulous gifts didn't come from Joan, and to threaten her is the height of something. How could anyone want to make little children suffer and to take them away from a good comfortable home?

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Tito Guizar wired that his wife was stricken with acute appendicitis in the midst of his concert tour at Bosse Field and was operated on immediately. He is very worried about her.

Joan Caulfield and Charlie Feldman are getting to be a habit. They were at the preview of "Black Narcissus" together—and later at the Goetz-Spitz party honoring J. Arthur Rank.

Rosalind Russell, a vision in red chiffon, stopped by our table at the party and every one of the males voted that she was one of the loveliest charmers present.

I sat with Susie and Alan Ladd and heard all about the ranch and how they are adding to the house. It all reminded me of when my favorite doctor and I were so ranch minded several years ago.

Marion Nixon (Mrs. William Seiter) is as pretty as she was when she was one of the most popular leading ladies.

The quick breeze that blew up the other night was just the big gasp of surprise when Ava Gardner and George Sanders walked in the Mocambo. Where was the "mystery" blonde George is supposedly gone on?

John Wayne, who has been so ill, is back in Hollywood and his doctor says he can start "War Party" July 28.

Margaret Whiting, who can't seem to make up her mind about her favorite beau, was dreaming into Jean Sablon's eyes at Ciro's last night.

The lady who may have caught Rory Calhoun's eye and heart is the rich Barbara Hinsdale, Arizona cattle heiress. He spent last week-end at her hacienda.

The presents Joan Crawford received from Don Barry were returned to him on Tuesday by Joan's lawyer. The cowboy actor still insists he didn't want the gifts back, that he is in love with her.

I hear that the actor who just can't stay sober (and I don't mean Lawrence Tierney who is being a good boy these days) has been dropped by his studio. Or if he hasn't, he will be next option time.

I can't believe that Sam Wanamaker wants to give up his acting career to become a director. He was wonderful with Bergman in "Joan of Lorraine" on the stage and he's equally good in his Warner movie—so they say. Why do these boys want to get behind a camera?

THAT'S ALL, TODAY. See you tomorrow!

George Holland

Boston After Dark

THE HARTMANS—GRACE AND PAUL—ARE SO GOOD in their intimate summer-theater revue, "Heaven Help the Angels," that they will rate starring billing in their next major musical for Broadway . . . That alone is a result worth the few thousands which the satirizing duo have invested . . . To make it quite perfect, however, comes the news that business in the strawhat circuit, especially here at the Boston Summer Theater, has been sizable enough to pay Paul and Grace nearly as much as they get when headlining in a class cafe . . . The Ritz-Carlton party in honor of Mark Hellinger was staged in the bar, but the Ritz service, facilities and food were the same, (the best) . . . It was the first time the famous first-floor bar has been pressed into service as a dining room . . . The main dining room is acquiring new decor at the hands of a New York decorator.

HOLLYWOOD is taking its recent "all-American" movement seriously, and Communists have gone out of fashion except in their own cells . . . The Darryl Zanuck party celebrating the producer's birthday was featured by a tableau, "The Spirit of '76," based on the inspiring painting . . . Advices from the coast do not go into detail concerning which characters enacted the tableau . . . But if Mr. Zanuck took part, his stature would have made it necessary to cast him as the drummer boy . . . Zanuck's physical size does not reflect his position in the movie industry . . . He rates as the No. 1 studio producer . . . As the years roll by, it becomes more evident that only two men have proved capable of running a studio and being responsible for making 40 to 50 feature-length films a year . . . Zanuck is one . . . The lamented Irving Thalberg was the other . . . Mike Todd loomed like a possible third "boy genius" when he set out to conquer Hollywood two years ago . . . Mike actually was offered the top producing job of a major studio notwithstanding that he had never produced a picture . . . But Mike and Universal have "split out," and if there are "Michael Todd Productions" to be made this year or next, they will be made in New York.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: William Wong, allegedly shot by his stepson, Earl Foo, is reported out of danger . . . The episode was an unhappy climax in the family life of Ruby Foo . . . Devoted to her husband and at the same time a most generous and affectionate mother, Ruby has the sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

AS THE young matriarch of a numerous tribe, Ruby has worked hard and cleverly for years to bring up her own children and several offspring of kinfolk . . . She has sought only the peace and happiness and well-being of the family . . . Friends report now that she is brooding and heartsick from the encounter between her husband and son.

IT IS A TOUGHT BREAK for a woman who started a vogue in Chinese-American food and who had a touch of genius in catering to the public and in handling public relations for her business. When she started Ruby Foo's Den as a small place seating less than 30 persons, Ruby was a widow and the sole support of her two young children, an adolescent sister and two younger brothers . . . She made good in a highly competitive business and was the first female of Chinese parentage to venture into business in Boston . . . (Some say that she was the first Chinese-American woman to go into the restaurant business in America.)

RUBY WAS WORRIED over the possible impact the shooting affray in her home might have on her business . . . Reports say that the effect has been negligible and that her customers have not been influenced adversely . . . At any rate, she certainly has this column's good wishes and hope that the end result of the near-tragedy is not too serious . . . This would seem like the right time for the scores of persons who have been befriended by Miss Foo to lend her some moral support . . . Ruby has performed some very wonderful charitable deeds that have been, at her insistence, unpublicized.

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON, July 10—Sen. Theodore Francis Green, of R. I., has served a final ultimatum on the 80th Congress. Unless it hurries up and buys George Washington he'll be sold to a South American country.

For 15 long years the Father of Our Country has been staring moodily at the walls of a storage shed in Sen. Green's native city of Providence. The senator wants him released from this gloomy prison and placed on a nice, airy, wind-conditioned, pedestal in front of the Capitol.

This particular George Washington is a solid citizen, being cast in bronze. Also, according to Sen. Green and other art connoisseurs, he is one of the finest "portrait" statues of the old hatchet man in existence. I tried to find out what a "portrait" statue was but the nearest I could get was that it has features somewhat resembling those of the subject.

Most statues of Washington, these art experts contend, look like other statues of Washington and not like Washington in the finer portraits. In other words, his finely chiseled features aren't finely chiseled enough.

THEY ALSO DECLARE there is no "portrait" statue of Washington anywhere in the Capital City named after him—which is an eye-opener in itself because I was convinced we had every conceivable type of statue here, including the statue of limitations.

The sad saga of why this George Washington has been languishing in a shed for 15 years, man and bronze, is this:

One of the features of the 200th Washington's Birthday celebration in 1932 was a plaster cast of the Washington statue, by J. Q. A. Ward, which stands on the subtreasury steps in Wall Street, marking the site of Federal Hall from the balcony of which Washington took his first oath as President on April 30, 1789.

The plaster model was also employed in 1933 for the Court of Honor in front of the White House at the inauguration of a certain long-term President.

It attracted the attention of the National Commission of Fine Arts which suggested it be recast in bronze. The sculptor's heirs agreed to claim no royalty and the Gorham Manufacturing Co., of Providence, proceeded to do the casting and offered it to the government for $15,000—$10,000 less than the original estimate.

Well, it seems as if one and all had forgotten it requires legislation to buy anything for Washington (D. C. not George.) Sen. Wagner tried to stick through a bill to buy the statue but it got stymied somewhere.

Finally in 1940, Brewster, of Maine, then a Representative, horsed through a two-way bill to remove the statue of John Marshall from in front of the Capitol to the grounds at the Supreme Court building, where he contended it historically belonged, and put the Washington statue in its place. The Brewster bill called for an expenditure of $15,000 to buy the G. W. statue and another $10,000 for a pedestal.

Everyone connected with the proposition was happy at last and the Gorham Co. started to prepare the statue for shipment. Then came the horrid recollection: After a bill to buy something has been passed there must be a second bill appropriating the money—and the first is no good without the latter.

So that is what Sen. Green is trying to do now—get an appropriation of $25,000. And, to carry the irony through to its logical conclusion, he wants the money included in the deficiency bill!

Two City Makeups Needed

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

BEAUTY IS A LEGAL bigamist in summertime. She leads a double life . . . an urban and a suburban one. You must look one way in the city . . . and another in the country or at the seashore. Naturally, your makeup plays a strong part in this dual role . . . and your face must play up to each part with special attention.

In the country or at the seashore . . . your background is wind, sand, mountains and lots of sky. Water, trees, grass earth, flowers and foliage reflect the clear light . . . a light that plays up the natural color of your skin. Under this light you are best-looking as natural as possible. Heavy makeup would be incongruous under this light and against such a setting.

In the city, it is another matter . . . and a matter which most women forget to consider. Most gals feel so good with their lovely suntan that they wear it naked with their most sophisticated clothes. And it does look just that . . . naked and harsh and hot-looking.

The explanation is a simple one . . . the city scenery is quite different. Tall gray buildings and asphalt pavements reflect a light that is not kind . . . a light that demands more color, finish, a makeup that will highlight and smooth your summer skin.

Here are two city makeups created by a topflight beautician for summer skin. For daytime use a dark rachel all-day foundation . . . a special illusion powder of rose rachel or light rosetta bronze . . . candy cane or sky blue pink rouge and lipstick . . . and an eyelash pomade. Any girl could be an artist's dream picture with such a gloriously perfect makeup . . . a makeup that will spotlight her charm and highlight her personality.

In the evening . . . switch to a dark rosetta bronze all-day foundation . . . a similarly-shaded illusion powder . . . a stronger red rouge and lipstick for greater depth of contrasting color and a bit of eyelash darkening.

It is trying enough to have to stay in the city when the great out-of-doors calls and beckons . . . but if we must, then let us make the most of the burden by pepping up the personality with the proper makeup . . . letter-perfect and captivating so we are not completely lost in beauty's shuffle.

For the names of these city-life makeup items for a smart, urban appearance, phone the Beauty Dept., LIB 4000, daily except week-end, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

QUITE A LOOKABLE little chick is Paramount starlet Wanda Hendrix . . . beribboned pigtails and all . . . as she rests in the haypile, vacation-like and comfortable. For suburban ease and enjoyment . . . that's fine. But for the city gal . . . the routine is a bit different. She must dress her hair, flatter the face with a becoming makeup and look as though she were really going to town . . . pun intended!

HOW CHANGED can the fall silhouette get? Well, here's a striking little number that's definitely not for the timid nor meant to be . . . with its daringly new "angel-wing" sleeve . . . launched by California's Lilli Ann. The suit is of twilight purple worsted crepe . . . but the sleeves . . . slashed from armhole to wrist . . . are lined with contrasting gunmetal satin and their fullness imparts drama to the form-fitting, side-closing jacket accented at the waist with a link-chain belt of gold metal. —R. Jealous Person Poor Risk

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a girl 18 years old and in love with a man 22. He tells me he loves me, and even talks of marriage, but he makes me very jealous by fooling around with my girl friends when he comes to see me. He knows I get jealous, yet he keeps on doing it.

Please tell me how to overcome my jealousy.
"HEARTACHE."

Dear "Heartache":

In my opinion, few 18-year-old girls are mature enough to be thinking about getting married, and you show your immaturity very plainly in being jealous. Jealousy is a very childish quality, and unless you begin to grow up emotionally very soon, you're not going to make a success of any marriage at any age.

One out of every five quarrels between husbands and wives is said to be caused by jealousy on one side or the other, and nearly half of all divorces. Anyone who knows anything at all about marriage will tell you that a jealous person is an extremely poor risk as a marital partner.

It's only human for this man to keep flirting with your girl friends when you make it so plain that it irritates you. If you took it in your stride, and laughed it off, he'd probably stop doing it because it wouldn't give him any more satisfaction. Teasing isn't any fun if a person doesn't mind it.

If a girl is afraid to have the man in whom she is interested pay any attention at all to any other girl, it simply shows she doesn't trust his feeling for her. If she were sure she came first with him, she'd know nobody else could win him away from her, and a little harmless flirting wouldn't worry her.

Bride Sends All Invitations

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: My sister is soon to be married, and I am to be her maid of honor. Should I invite my boy friend's mother to the wedding dinner, or just to the reception in the evening?
T. ANNA.

This is for your sister to decide . . . for it is her privilege to extend all wedding invitations, for ceremony, dinner and reception. The fact that you are to be the maid of honor doesn't give you this privilege, but I am sure that if you talk it over with your sister, she will be delighted to send your boy friend's mother an invitation to the reception. But if the wedding dinner is for the family only or for family and wedding attendants (as I imagine it might be, since there is to be a reception also), an invitation to your friend's mother would be inappropriate, and I'm sure she wouldn't expect one.

Souffles High in Food Value

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

SOUFFLES RANK SECOND to none when it comes to adding lustre to your reputation as a cook—second to none, also, when food values are counted. And there is certainly a reason, for souffles are tricky to make—not difficult, really, but nevertheless you have to have the password. When a delicate, puffy creation appears on the table as main dish or elegant dessert, up goes your stock and rightfully.

Nutritionally speaking, too, souffles are important for they are milk and egg concoctions that enclose a wealth of plus values. Cheese, for instance, asparagus, lemon juice and even fresh pineapple all add their quota of food values in the recipes below—along with milk and eggs and margarine.

Incidentally, margarine rates high not only for its fine flavor and its calory content, but it is also most important as a constant, unvarying source of vitamin A. Vitamins and minerals are found, always, in such small quantities it is important to remember that every source is important.

Coming back to recipes—note that in the recipe for cheese souffle you have delightful suggestions for varying the seasonings with spices such as dill or caraway. This attention to taste touches marks the exceptional cook.

BASIC SOUFFLE RECIPE WITH VEGETABLES

3 tbsp. margarine
½ tsp. garlic or onion salt
Dash cayenne pepper
½ tsp. chili powder or curry powder
¼ tbsp. flour
1 cup milk (or tomato juice)
1 cup vegetables, chopped, cooked
4 eggs, separated

Melt margarine in heavy saucepan. Mix seasoning with flour; add to margarine and mix smooth. Add liquid. Stir over low heat until very thick. Remove from heat. Stir small portion into the eggs, when well mixed and smooth, stir this egg mixture into the thick sauce. Add vegetables. Whip egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into sauce. Pour into ungreased casserole. Set in pan of warm water and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 50 to 60 minutes until thin knife inserted into center comes out dry. Serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

VEGETABLE VARIATIONS

Asparagus, broccoli, peas, beans—all are souffle favorites. Be sure they are drained of all liquid, then chop (not too finely) and add as directed in recipe.

DILL CHEESE SOUFFLE

¼ cup butter or margarine
1¼ cup flour
1 cup milk
1 tsp. caraway or dill seeds
1 cup grated American cheese
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. paprika
4 eggs, separated
½ tsp. mustard

Melt butter or margarine and stir in flour; gradually add milk and cook about 5 minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens; add cheese and seasonings, stirring until it is melted, and remove from heat. Gradually stir in well beaten egg yolks and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites; turn into ungreased casserole or baking and put in pan of hot water; bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 50 to 60 minutes, or until delicately browned and firm to touch. Serve at once. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

PINEAPPLE SOUFFLE

1-3 cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, separated
1 cup fine graham cracker crumbs
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup grated pineapple

Cream butter or margarine, sugar, and beat well; add beaten egg yolks, then bread crumbs and fruit. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and turn into greased baking dish; place in pan or hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 35 minutes, or until firm. Makes 6 small servings.

Longer Skirts Debated

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

WHETHER to follow fashion and wear longer skirts or stick stubbornly to past preferences and wear them shorter is the big topic of discussion among style-conscious girls. Arguments haven't been so heated since the days when women were making up their minds whether to bob their hair.

Skirts are definitely longer and the girl who doesn't want to look like last year's leavings will have to go along with the trend. However, there is no hard and fast rule that says skirts must be just so many inches from the floor. The degree of longer length that flatters you is what you should wear.

John Gielgud Loves Boston Audiences

By PEGGY DOYLE

It's love for love, too, with Boston and John Gielgud, he confessed over brunch at the Ritz-Carlton.

Against the advice of his bookers, Gielgud, in evidence of his appreciation for Boston's enthusiastic response to his extraordinarily fine production of "The Importance of Being Earnest," determined that this city must see "Love for Love," and it's the current attraction at the Colonial.

The Congreve comedy had not been too well-received on Broadway, the strain of putting on both productions had been considerable and his business advisers sought to argue him out of his proposed plan to return here with it and then take it to Canada in favor of a much-needed rest.

"But I'm a stubborn fellow," he told us, with a quick smile. "I'm genuinely fond of Boston audiences. I wanted them to see 'Love for Love,' and the reception we got opening-night was wonderful and heartening. In their frankly hearty response to two such distinctly different and infrequently produced classics as 'Earnest' and 'Love,' Boston playgoers reveal an awareness and a capacity to take part in intellectual experiments not shared by my own countrymen.

"It pleases me that we are bringing Robinson Jeffers' 'Medea,' with Judith Anderson, here for the pre-Broadway engagement. After vacationing in England, I will be back in New York in September to direct 'Medea,' which is to open here some time in October."

Much farther in the future is Gielgud's much cherished professional ambition to assemble a top-notch repertory company and, following London and New York runs, to tour the United States in "Richard II," "School for Scandal" and "King Lear."

But, he admitted, the obstacles to getting together a first-rate cast in England today are appalling. Due to his country's economic straits, it were as easy to produce a play as to look forward to security in old age in post-war England, the actor-producer-director admitted. And it is not the stars that represent the difficulty, he revealed but the lesser players who must be guaranteed 52 weeks of work a year to keep body and soul together from day to day and without a shilling left over for their old age.

And in that connection, old age, that is, Gielgud reaffirmed the New York interview that he and Hamlet have phfft after more than 1000 performances in the role since he was 26.

"Now I'm 43," and I quote from the Lucius Beebe-bylined interview in the New York Sunday Herald-Tribune, "and if you take 43 as Hamlet's own age that makes his mother 60 at the very least and by the most tolerant reckoning, no woman at 60 in her right mind is going to carry on around Elsinore the way that Gertrude of Denmark does in the script."

Gielgud belives the movies are responsible for terminating this historied racket of aging theatrical "greats" continuing to play juveniles into their dotage. Glamor-obsessed Hollywood, particularly, puts the accent on youth and, he added, "on good performance and don't think that the screen's more exacting acting standards have not stepped up slovenly footlights performances."

'Snuffy Smith' Tops Gay Laffmovie Bill

"Snuffy Smith," based on the popular comic strip and starring Bob Duncan in the title role and Edgar Kennedy as the "revenooer," is now to be seen at the Laffmovie. Other program items are the Leon Errol-starring short, "Oh, Professor, Beware," "Moron Than Off," with Sterling Holloway, and an assortment of cartoons and newsreels.

'Cheyenne' Thrills At Scollay, Olympia

"Cheyenne," Warners' gunblazing Western co-starring Dennis Morgan and Jane Wyman, dramatizes America's last frontier for Washington St. Olympia and Scollay Square patrons currently. Heading the supporting cast are handsome Janis Paige, Bruce Bennett and Alan Hale.

The companion film, "I Cover Big Town," teams Philip Teed and Hillary Brooke.

'Dream Girl' Arrives At Shubert July 28

"Dream Girl," starring the screen's Technicolorful Lucille Ball in the title role Betty Field created in her husband, Elmer Rice's Broadway comedy hit, will open a two-week engagement at the Shubert, beginning Monday, July 28.

As the young, charming, imaginative heroine, Miss Ball enacts her first stage role since 1937.

'Stone Flower' Proves Russian Screen Gem in Color

Russia's secret calar process, which is said to have come to them as a "German war prize," mated to the gentlest story that ever came out of the Soviet Union, is now on view at the Kenmore Theater.

"Stone Flower," first feature-length picture photographed in color by this secret process, is a complete departure from war and/or politics motivated pictures that have come out of Russia and yet it may have started a Russian revolution.

For, in its newly introduced use of color, it has achieved a visual beauty that challenges the supremacy of Hollywood's Technicolor. It took first prize at the International Cinema Festival recently held at Cannes.

The story stems from "The Malachine Box," an old Russian folk legend about an apprentice stone carver who fashions a beautiful malachite, flower-like chalice but it does not satisfy his yearning for perfection in his craft.

When he is most troubled the Queen of the Copper Mountain appears, promising to show him a magical bloom that combines the eternity of stone and the living beauty of a fragrant, unplucked flower.

On his wedding-night, he leaves Katya, his own true love, to explore the magic mountain kingdom. There he finds the flower and perfects his imitation of it only to discover he is not happy. Held captive by the queen, Katya's love leads her into the mountain caverns where she finds her Danila. Together, the strength of their love breaks the malign queen's spell, and they are free to live happily ever after.

This gravely, beautifully told fairy tale is one to enthrall children of all ages, for aided by this amazing new color process it creates on the screen a land of enchantment.

Handsome Vladimir Druzhnikor makes the stone carver a sensitive, convincing hero and Elena Derevschikova's Katya has the gentle beauty and sweetness of a fairy-tale heroine. They and the rest of a fine cast have been directed with remarkable skill by Alexander Ptushko. And this with Feodor Provorov's camera work, notable in his closeups of the shimmering underground fairyland, have given us a picture that moves in beauty and an aura of innocence, the fairy tale of your fondest childhood's imaginings.

Writer Says Reds Reversing Trend

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio, July 10 (AP)—Bertram Wolfe, one-time newspaperman who lived extensively in Russia before the second World War, declared the Soviet Union is now moving in an opposite direction from the kind of equality and fredeom for which the revolution was fought.

Addressing the Antioch College Institute of International Relations, Wolfe declared:

"Russia today has far more forced slave labor by the lowest estimate than the number of indusrtial workers the revolution was originally supposed to free."

Sicilian 'Robin Hood' Eludes Police

PALERMO, Sicily, July 10 (AP)—A drive against banditry in which soldiers, carabinieri and police took part, today had netted ten alleged followers of outlaw Salvatore Giuliano, but Silicy's haughty "king of the mountains" remained at large.

It was the second time this week that Giuliano—a thorn in the side of the new regional government but a sort of 20th century Robin Hood to the country folk of the area where he operates—had eluded capture.

Tuesday police thought they had him surrounded in a gulch, but when they invaded it he was gone.

(Dispatches to Rome newspapers said Giuliano, fleeing from the gulch, left behind a scarecrow bearing a placard which read "Do not eat the grain that God has reserved for the people."

Sicilian authorities are particularly hot after Giuliano just now because he recently has set himself up as the leader of an anti-Communist drive in the island.

The housing shortage has even hit the Quincy Fire Department.

The fire laddies have been unable to find a place suitable to house two pieces of apparatus while a new fire station is being built on the site of the present 100-year-old building, at Houghs Neck.

Officials said that unless temporary accommodations could be found, the section would have to be covered by the central station in Quincy sq.

Bugsy's Girl Friend 'On Spot'

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 10 (AP)—Fear that Virginia Hill, thrice-wed Alabama girl now in Paris, may be marked for a gangland style death similar to that which snuffed out the life of Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel in her palatial home here June 20 was expressed by police chief C. H. Anderson.

He disclosed he had been informed by an "underground source" that a "pair of assassins" are en route to Paris to "take care" of Miss Hill, who departed with Siegel for the French capital two weeks before an unidentified assailant fired a fusillade of .30 calibre rifle bullets into the former public enemy.

Anderson said it had been learned that Miss Hill and Siegel, 42, quarreled violently before she started on her Paris trip from Las Vegas, Nev., where he owned part interest in the swank Flamingo gambling casino. Her brother Charles said she previously had discussed marriage with Siegel.

Sullivan Sq. Traffic Relief Promised

Construction of an underpass at Sullivan sq., Charlestown, at a cost of $300,000 will begin within six months and will be completed within another six months, Temporary Mayor John B. Hynes announced.

It will run from Rutherford ave. to Alford st., where the Newbury-square, which has one of the worst port Turnpike starts. A traffic circle may also be built at the traffic problems in the state.

Braves' Pilot Gives Q's + A's Of Managing

By AUSTEN LAKE

THIS PARAGRAPHER has talked with all the major league managers in the last twenty-three years. Some, notably Miller Huggins, Charley Grimm, Connie Mack, Muddy Ruel, Eddie Dyer and Bucky Harris, were fluent of speech and had lucid ideas. And some, especially Bill Terry, John McGraw, Lee Fohl, were surly and resentful. And a few, like Joe McCarthy, were human clams.

But the tops, the genuine pinnacle of patience, clarity, coherence and co-operation is the one named Billy Southworth of the Braves. And the writer is not one to toss nosegays at sport characters just to make happy hearts.

The Manager Speaks

SO BILLY SAT IN HIS hotel suite sermonizing on various Q's and A's of what makes the Braves' clock tick, acknowledging that, on paper, they are just a lot of gents assembled from the unwanted surplus of the rest of the league, with a sprinkling of minor league pickups. To wit and viz:

Q—How important is a manager to a ball club?

A—Every team reflects its manager. A fellow once said any pennant-winning club must be 25 per cent stronger than the rest of the teams in his league. I believe that. But I say, why can't a manager get 25 per cent more out of his players by building morale and discipline and determination. No player, whatever his talents, is any better than his effort.

Q—Morale? Just what do you mean?

A—Morale begins in spring training and in the clubhouse rather than on the field. It's the foundation of a season's success or failure. First, a manager has to sell himself to his players 'till they know they are sure to get justice, rough or smooth. It's just another word for loyalty, or interest in the job. Many a mediocre team beat a better one for that reason.

Marginalia—The Braves have a "flower" fund" to which every player contributes $5. If they, or any member of their family, is sick or injured, the fund provides flowers, or smokes, or candy. Southworth says, "Sounds trivial, but it makes the player realize that somebody is interested in his welfare."

Q—Have you any so-called bad actors on the Braves?

A—None. We haven't fined a single player for misbehavior this season. Haven't had to.

Q—Do you have a system of fines?

A—No system. But they are subject to fines. One rigid rule is a 12 p. m. curfew. At home, where the men are scattered, they are on their honor. On the road, they telephone me the moment they reach their rooms, and we have a check call, too. No gambling, no missing trains, no gossip about teammates. Put it this way, "nothing contrary to the club's best interest." And that's LAW!

Marginalia—One rigid clubhouse rule is, if the team loses, there must be no postmortems of the game, no conversational replay. If it wins, the men can talk about the game all they like.

Q—Do you call players on the carpet for making mistakes?

A—Betcha! But never before the other player and never the same day. I take him into my office the next day and we talk it over. No brow-beating, just analysis. Any manager who takes away a player's self-respect, loses that man's loyalty and his extra ounce of effort. But, when I make mistakes—and I do, I tell the whole team right away. Like at Philadelphia where I waved Dick Culler home and he was thrown out at the plate. I told the boys, "I pulled a boot there," and explained why. We're all human

No Braves' Loafers

Q—What's your toughest job?

A—Keeping 25 men satisfied. Next, when to yank a pitcher. Worst problem is when a pitcher begins to wobble with two men out. You always hope he can get by the next batter and end the inning. But hesitation wrecks many a ball game.

Q—Is the position of the Braves, one game out of first, any surprise to you?

A—None whatever! We bought or traded players that we knew were fundamentally sound, but hadn't been given an honest chance with the clubs they came from. Men like Voiselle, Camilli, McCormick, Shoun, Bealey, Karl, Barrett. All they needed was that chance, proper handling and encouragement. I'd rather have such types than many of the so-called stars. We have no stars on this ball club, just hustlers.

Q—What makes a team hustle?

A—The players themselves. One loafer on a ball club can upset the whole spirit. Start 'em off right in the spring and they'll usually keep on going. I honestly can say I haven't a slacker on the team. I told them at the start, "I expect every man to run out his hits to the limit of speed and every fielder to give his best." I haven't had to tell 'em twice.

Q—Can the Braves hold the pace?

A—I expect them to do just that. Take Johnny Hopp, for example. He hasn't had the great start he did last year because he is sensitive to cold and bad weather. But with the summer heat he should take fire. That'll mean a lot. Voiselle has rounded into good physical shape and is reliable. We've four good rotation pitchers, Voiselle, Spahn, Sain and Barrett. I'm neither optimist nor calamity howler, but I expect the team to be right up there, if not on top, close under.

It made a sound credo of major league management—just a meat and potatoes policy which, in my sight, makes Billy Southworth the leader he is—part psychiatrist, part cracker barrel lawyer, part barrack room diplomat and ALL "solid sender." A. E. D.

Next 10 Days May Tell Story Of Braves' Pennant Chance

By FRED HOEY

Just how far in the present pennant scramble the Braves will advance will, in a fair measure, be determined over the next 10 days at the Wigwam, during which 13 games will be played. The home stand opens today with a unique two-game affair, one game at 1:30 this afternoon and the other at 8:45 tonight with the Cincinnati Reds furnishing the opposition.

As the Braves enter the second half of the season there is a strong belief in sound baseball circles that Billy Southworth has the resources at his command to turn the trick. To those not so certain there is always the bugaboo of the Cards and Dodgers bobbing up to haunt the Braves.

Going into this closing stretch Southworth has four pitchers he can use in rotation: Red Barrett, Bill Voiselle, Johnny Sain and Warren Spahn.

Then little Walter Lanfranconi, Clyde Shoun and Ed Wright provide extra mound strength that is nice to have around as the stretch drive develops.

There is a good chance that Bob Elliott will be back at third base for the Braves in the two games today and tonight. Bob has been under treatment for an injured index finger on his right hand since he hurt it in the Brooklyn game last Saturday. It was so painful that Bob was unable to report for All-Star duty on Tuesday in Chicago. Southworth will decide at game time today whether Elliot is fit. If not, handy Bama Rowell will take over.

The Braves are one full game away from the pace and have a small lead over the Giants. The Giants have lost less games than both the Braves and Dodgers but the latter teams have won more; Brooklyn four and the Tribe two.

The Braves will finish out the week with the Reds playing another arclight game tomorrow night and a singleton daytime game Saturday. The Cubs come in Sunday for a twin bill and that series will be followed by the Cards and Pirates.

Seven of the 13 home games will be under lights with five of these next week coming in a row.

The Braves have slipped out of first place four times to date. This isn't anything to cause alarm. In fact, many managers prefer a team other than their own to make the pace.

The Braves are on the upsurge with the stick. Buck McCormick has reached .301, Bama Rowell an even .300 and Tommy Holmes, Phil Masi, Mike McCormick and Sibi Sisti have been making appreciable batting gains.

With this good stick work maintained and the pitching reaching its best standard, the Braves are well equipped to make a rousing battle of this pennant fight.

Mgr. Southworth is reluctant to use Johnny Sain or Warren Spahn today or tonight.

Bucky Walters and Johnny Vandemeer appear to be the logical Red pitchers tonight. Vandy lasted less than two innings against the Cards Sunday so he should be ready. Both Vandy and Bucky have always been tough for the Braves.

Johnny Neun's pitchers have seen plenty of service over the past 10 days and the All-Star game respite was welcomed by these overworked hurlers.

It will be interesting to see whether Eddie Miller plays short for the Reds today. Eddie had a strained back that kept him out of the All-Star game.

The Braves are expected to announce today the addition of a new player who will come to the team through the waiver route.

The identity of the player is closely guarded by John Quinn and Billy Southworth, who spent a long time in conference last night discussing the player.

Stop Yanks Battle Cry Of A. L.

By The Associated Press

The old, familiar cry of "stop the Yankees" rang through the American League again today.

It's been four years since the alarm signals have been sounded in the junior circuit over an onsurging Yankee menace although it's a different sort of a crew that Buck Harris brought into St. Louis for the opening of the New Yorkers' third invasion of the West this year.

Miller Huggins and Joe McCarthy's outfits were the long hitting, big inning type, while Harris, in his first year at the helm of the Bronx Bombers, has had to play pretty close to the vest.

But even the 1947 Yankee model has begun to take on a slight resemblance to the Bombers of old. In racking up eight straight contests until the All-Star tilt brought a temporary halt to their successes, the Yanks displayed plenty of power and were gunning for the big inning.

I the Yanks are going to be stopped this year, the Western clubs, in particular Detroit, will have to unload both barrels now, say the top baseball authorities. Joe Cronin, whose Red Sox spread-eagled the field last year, admitted as much at the All-Star game in Chicago.

The Yanks are eight games in front of both Detroit and the Red Sox and those two are the only two clubs that are conceded much of a chance to derail the Bronx Express. Connie Mack's amazing A's are 10½ games astern with Cleveland another half back, but neither figures to bother the Yanks.

While the Yanks will take on the Browns in an arclighter tonight, the Red Sox and Tigers will fight it out in a twilight tilt at Detroit. Connie Mack's A's face the Indians at Cleveland in a twi-night double-header in which Bobby Feller will test out his ailing knee and back. The American League program is rounded out by a Washington at Chicago twin bill.

The sizzling National League race picks up in the east with the aroused Cardinals, now in fourth place, challenging the third place Giants in a night affair which opens a five-games in three-days series; the fifth place Cubs tackle the pace-setting Dodgers in a doubleheader at Brooklyn and the sixth place Reds, only six games off the pace, tangle with the runner-up Braves in double-pay day and night contests at Boston. Pittsburgh's hapless Pirates and the fading Phils continue the battle of the cellar in a bargain bill at Quakertown.

Red Sox Start Dente at Hot Corner

By HERB FINNEGAN

DETROIT, July 10—Sam Dente greeted Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr as the Red Sox were awaiting their twilight game with Detroit with a hail: "Hiya, All-Stars. Let's greet the Tigers the way you did the N. L. stars."

Dente is the new Red Sox third baseman. He reported this morning and will be in the lineup at 5 p. m. this evening. He's a well-met, husky kid of 25 who can handle his dukes with the best in the pro fight game. In fact, he used to act as spar mate for Tippy Larkin.

"Hiya Roomie," he said to Sam Mele with whom he played at Scranton last year. "'Member telling me if I shaved and changed my shirt I'd be a big leaguer? Well, I've shaved and changed my shirt. Here I am to stay."

Dente is a most personable lad, and he's got something of a background. When he was in high school in Kearney, N. J., he played professional soccer as well as amateur baseball.

"They were all Donnybrooks," said Sam of the soccer matches. "Every man for himself. The extra-curricular fights were much harder than the games, especially when the spectators got too much tea in them. And it seemed they always had."

"Hiya helpmate," he greeted Earl Johnson, and he wasn't fooling when he said it. Dente was in the 106th Division that the Germans broke through in the "Battle of the Bulge," and how he escaped intact he can't relate himself. "All I know is that Johnson was among those who rushed to our rescue," he said.

Dente stands 5-11, weighs 180. He's everybody's favorite and has been since he trained at Sarasota with Sox last spring.

He's an aggressive kid who hit .289 for Scranton's pennant-winners last year, the first season he put in pro ball since pre-war days.

"He's the fielding equal of any third baseman in the majors," said George Toporcer last winter. "If he hits, he's established."

Dente proved in March that he could field with anybody in the business.

He was batting .327 when the Sox recalled him and he was chesty enough to say this morning: "Sox using six and seven third basemen a season? Didn't they have any faith in Grantland Garro?"

Grantland Garro, sports editor of La Notizia who has switched from Mele to Dente, was on Joe Cronin's ear all spring.

"Play Rocco at first, Pellagrini at short, Dente at third, Mele in right, DiMaggio in center and get Camelli from the Braves for catching, Joe, and I'll guarantee you a pennant," said the switching editor.

Dente is here; and he guarantees a laugh-a-minute. Also, he guarantees a baseball a game. He's got plenty of moxie and plenty of ability, and he'll provide a much-needed spark to the sagging Sox who must win on this 15-game western trip on stow away their gear for another year.

MICKEY HARRIS GOES TO N. Y. DOCTOR

DETROIT, July 10 — Sore-armed Tex Hughson, who has been advised to have his arm operated on, accompanied the Sox here. However, his southpaw running mate, Mickey Harris, was not along.

"He knows a doctor in New York who has made some success with other pitchers," said Joe Cronin, "and Mickey himself had said he was going to visit the physician who treated Red Ruffing, Lefty Gomez and Marius Russo when they were with the Yankees."

Mickey is a native New Yorker though he bought a home in Arlington, Mass., last winter. He has made only three starts on the mound this season, and it seems as if he's out until 1948. He won 17, lost 9 in '46.

Joe Dobson has high hopes today that his arm trouble was gone for good.

"I ha dtwo teeth extracted in Boston just before we took the train," he revealed today. "A Dr. Killilea of Malden did the job and did it well."

Dobson's arm has been troubling him for the post two weeks and in his last start, on July 5, it became so sore he had to leave the game against Washington after six innings.

"The soreness has disappeared," he said. "The arm feels light and elastic again, just as it did in 1943 after I had my tonsils removed."

Dobson's jaw is still quite sore but he says he's able to take his regular turn on the mound and expects to pitch Saturday.

Normie Roy Hurls One-Hitter

Normie Roy, 18-year-old Braves farmhand pitcher, turned in a one-hitter for Pawtucket last night while beating Portland, 7-0, in a New England League game.

The Waltham High all-scholastic had a no-hitter going until the seventh when Alex Nahigian hit a single to left field.

Normie Roy

The front-running Lynn Red Sox also were given outstanding pitching while sweeping a doubleheader from Fall River, 3-1 and 8-6. Harry Pilarski gave the Sox a three-hit pitching performance during the seven-innings opener.

Rookie pitcher Chuck Stobbs gained his second straight win for the Sox in the nightcap but had to be yanked in the eighth frame. He gave the Indians six hits and walked seven while striking out nine batters. Jim Shirley homered twice for Lynn in the afterpiece.

Dean Wood's grand-slam homer climaxed a six-round second inning that the Nashua Dodgers uncorked while defeating the Manchester Giants, 8-6. The Providence Chiefs put on an exhibition with the Cincinnati Reds and the latter, thanks to a pair of homers by Henry Zientara, which accounted for four runs, pulled out an 8-4 win at Cranston Stadium.

Art Young, the ex-Dartmouth catcher with Providence, gave the Chiefs their first two runs in the second inning by poling a one-on homer. Ed Erault, who pitched all the way for the Reds, wound up with a total of 14 strikeouts while being clubbed for 12 safe blows.

Scion of Spats Firm Fights Golf Pro Edict

By BILL GRIMES

Recently, Milton J. Reach, Jr., Londmeadow, was notified by the United States Golf Ass'n that he had been declared a professional. That must body charges that because he sells golf equipment, young Reach is no longer eligible to compete as an amateur.

The Reach family has been manufacturing sports equipment for generations. The Reach baseball, used in the American League, was originated by Mill's grandfather. His father, Milton J., Sr., was affiliated with one of the country's largest sports equipment concerns in the country. He was never declared a professional by the U. S. G. A.

Milton J. Reach, Jr., is a good golfer, one of the best in the New England section, but his reputation as a golfer would not affect the sales of the clubs his father invented and he is selling, in any way, shape or manner.

Many years ago, the U. S. G. A. declared Francis Ouimet a pro, when he went into the sporting goods business with his brother-in-law, John Sullivan. The U. S. G. A. was roundly criticized for the Ouimet decision and Francis was eventually reinstated.

There isn't any question but that Ouimet was commercializing his name. He had won the U. S. open and amateur titles, prior to entering the sports equipment venture.

But, Milton J Reach's case is different. Young Reach is a complete stranger to golfers, other than some New Englanders and winter visitors at Pinehurst, N. C. So, he has appealed and demands a hearing before the USGA.

Among the old-timers who dropped in at Commonwealth yesterday to watch the second of the qualifying rounds for the state amateur championship were Jesse P. Guilford, A. S. Brown, Ernie Manson, Frank McNamara, J. L. Hern, long John Slattery, Emory P. Stratton, Andy McKenzie, Frank Huntress, Adam Gages, Bill Ormsby, Frank Butler, Steve Hopkins and Dick Manning.

Phil Holtz, owner of the Merrimack Valley Country Club, will never be forgotten by the juniors who played in the Hearst at his club last Monday. Phil had the 72 kids as his guests for luncheon, after they'd taken their stroke tests.

Incidentally, the Merrimack Valley Golf Club course has never been in better shape, thanks to Maurice Ryan, the greenskeeper, whom I remember when he was caddying at Happy Valley with Jess Kennedy.

The fourth and final qualifying round of the Hearst New England junior championship will be played tomorrow at the Wachusett Golf Club, at W. Boylston. Any boy, who has not reached his 19th birthday and who has not played in any of the three previous qualifications is eligible to compete tomorrow.

Although the field at Wachusett may not be as large as the others, it will be one of the fastest. Jackie White, Jr., Stockbridge, Bob Marchesse, Jimmy and Danny Cossick, Springfield, George Hover, and Don Hoenig, Connecticut, will be a few of the outstanding juniors at Wachusett.

Wachusett C. C. Host in 4th W. R. Hearst N. E. Junior Golfing Championship Trial

Joe Marrone, president of the Wachusett Country Club, West Boylston, Mass., will spread the welcome mat for the best golfers in the Western Massachusetts area tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock sharp.

This Wachusett round will be the last of four qualifying rounds for the Hearst New England Junior golf championships. The first three rounds were held at the Pawtucket Golf Club, the Merrimack Valley Country Club and the South Shore C. C.

Already 24 golfers, eight from each club, have qualified for the Hearst N. E. finals at Woodlawn on July 28, 29 and 30. The eight qualifiers tomorrow will make up the championship draw of 32 boys.

The two finalists in the 1947 "Hearst" will be sent on an expense free two week trip to Los Angeles, California, for the Hearst National finals.

It is too late to post your entry in the mail. So, special provisions have been made with the Hearst golfing board so that post entries may be accepted on the first tee at Wachusett tomorrow morning.

All competitors must be under 19 years of age. There is no entry fee.

Doherty vs. Flynn in State

By BILL GRIMES

Thirty-two survivors of the qualifying rounds of the State Amateur championship went into action this morning in the first round of match play at the Commonwealth Country Club.

Ernie Doherty, Woburn, who was the medalist with a 145, drew Jack Flynn, Oakley, and expected to encounter some stiff opposition before he gets into the open. Harry Ernst, a Boston College freshman, was at the top of the second quarter playing Bob McKenna, Martin Memorial, while Ray Marad, of the home club, a favorite to annex the title who posted a 148 for his qualifications, was in the fourth quarter and out with Walter Wilcox, Winchester, who captained the Harvard golf team last spring.

The Winchester Country Club had five representatives in match play, the Harvey brothers, Jim and Jackie, Eddie Martin, Bill Adams and Walter Wilcox, Commonwealth had Harry Ernst, Edmund Murphy and Ray Marad while Brae Burn had Bill Blaney, Charlie Mulcahy and John S. Clapp, Jr., the club champion.

Two 18-hole rounds was the schedule for today and tomorrow and the finalists will engage in a 36-hole match Saturday to decide the successor to Ted Bishop, who defaulted his crown.

Match play draw:

Ernie Doherty, Woburn, vs. Jack Flynn, Oakley.

George Carley, Marion, vs. W. O. Adams, Winchester.

J. M. Batchelder, Salem, vs. John S. Clapp Jr., Brae Burn.

Art Peterson, Oak Hill, vs. W. O. Blaney, Brae Burn.

87 Enter Swim Meet

Joe Prata and Clara Lamore, acknowledged to be the two finest swimmers in New England, will be among the entries for the first Record-American-Sunday Advertiser swim meet which is scheduled for the Wentworth-by-the-Sea pool at Portsmouth, N. H., next Saturday afternoon at 3 p. m.

Clara is a National AAU champion and an American record holder. Joe is the New England men's champion. Both are from Providence.

The meet will sparkle with a total of 87 competitors, believed to be the largest number of swimmers to compete in a N. H. meet for the past six years.

Norman Kitching, the director of the Hearst meet, has outlined an extensive swim program. There will be diving, water ballet, aquatic acrobatics and 10 swim races.

Two British Boxers To Show in Spain

LONDON, July 10 (AP)—Two British boxers will go to Spain for fights at San Sebastian on Aug. 14, it was announced today.

Pawtucket Sandlot Trials July 16

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

The eighth and ninth in the series of Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser Sandlot baseball tournaments will be held next week. The first of these is set for Pawtucket, R. I., on Wednesday, July 16. The second is docketed for Dilboy Field, Somerville, on Saturday, July 19.

These two sandlot baseball tests will precede the Hearst trials at Braves Field. This Boston version of sandlot trials will be remembered wherever sandlot baseball is discussed.

The Herculean total of 680 ball players competed in this Braves Field championship. The tryouts at Pawtucket and at Somerville should also be successes in the Hearst series.

Two boys will be selected from the Pawtucket tournament. These two boys will represent that area in the Hearst New England title game at Fenway on July 29.

The Pawtucket trals will be directed by Pete Fox, manager of the Pawtucket Slaters of the New England League. Varnum T. Barber, president of the Pawtucket club, will act as a director of the Hearst tryouts.

Bob Magill, business manager of the Slaters, sends word that there is an unusually high sandlot interest in Pawtucket.

Mayor Bradley of Somerville, looks for the Somerville trial to rival that held at Braves Field.

"I have talked with many of the boys who were not selected at Braves Field last Tuesday," said Bradley. "Many of these boys felt that they were overlooked in the crowd of 680 competitors.

"I expect that many of these boys will be at Dilboy Field, for the Northern Suburban trials."

The age limit for these Hearst sandlot trials is over 15 and under 19 years of age. There is no entry fee.

Top Fillies Entered for Betsy Ross at Suffolk

By DAVE WILSON

The emphasis will be on quality rather than quantity when a dozen or less fillies parade postward in Saturday's running of the $10,000 Betsy Ross Stakes, a five and a half furlong test that will give juvenile members of the so-called weaker sex their initial opportunity to compete in a stake event for the first time during the current New England season.

Already on the grounds and listed as a definite starter in the week-end feature is the Greentree Stable's What's New, heroine of the Polly Drummond Stakes at Delaware Park. This daughter of Blenheim, 2nd, and Small World must pack a load of 119 pounds, part of which will probably be made up by Teddy Atkinson, one of America's greatest jockeys who first came into prominence on the New England circuit.

The Brookmeade Stable's Elastic, winner of the Colleen Stakes at Monmouth Park, is another glamorous debutante on the grounds anxiously awaiting the bugle call for the Betsy Ross. Elastic drubbed C. V. Whitney's highly-regarded Dusty Legs in her Jersey score. Jimmy Lynch, another New England product, is slated to have the mount on the daughter of Good Goods and Step Away.

Ann's Lee, a triple winner at the recent Narragansett Park meeting from the Anna M. Dursch Stable, and Fred W. Wyse's Romanette are both listed as definite starters in the filly special and they seem much the best of the local contingent.

Other possibilities in the Betsy Ross are Clifford Lussky's Tiotwo, John M. Lee's Smajor, Mrs. Henry Obre's Perhaps, Reynold Bros.' Mountain Time, Mrs. Ellsworth H. Augustus' Coral Way, D. B. Jones' Music Miss, R. B. Carroll's Speedy Bozo, and J. A. Kelley's Crimson Flash.

Orioles' Flop Cuts Stadium Revenue

BALTIMORE, July 10 (AP)—City revenue from the stadium will drop off considerably this year if Baltimore's next-to-last-place Orioles continue to draw such small crowds, says C. Kirk Straub, president of the park board.

"Last Sunday's double-header drew only 8000 persons," Straub said. "Sunday double-headers last summer drew around 20,000."

Chalk Players 'In' at Lincoln

By BOB WALDO

LINCOLN DOWNS, Lincoln, R. I. July 9—A gathering of 9000 race goers watched one of the finest races of the New England season yesterday when H. H. Haag's Bob O'Sullivan, an invader from Narragansett, scored a head victory over the slightly favored Baroque in the featured sixth race. When they left the barrier Baroque was a few hundred dollars choice in the win pool.

Jockey Charlie Bureau had to urge Bob O'Sullivan the entire length of the mile course, as Baroque, under an excellent ride by Ray Powers, took repeated shots at the winner.

Chalk players in the crowd of 9000 had one of their best days as four of the public choices came to the wire first. In the first event Hawkwood Bill, backed down to favorite, scored a clever win to return $6.40. The double combination was completed with another choice when Madigama was in front at the wire to return $7.40. The double paid $29. Other favorites to gallop were Tetra Rock and Star Batter, while two second choices, Bob O'Sullivan and Wise Chance, won.

It was announced by track officials that they were introducing a new feature to aid the public in future disqualification claims. The public will be informed through the loud speaker system by whom and against which rider the foul has been claimed and was committed.

TODAY'S SPORTS ROUNDUP

By the Associated Press

The sport of baseball lost one of its greatest friends when Judge W. G. Bramham died Tuesday, and so did a lot of people who write about the game. It wasn't easy to get close to the stern jurist who ruled the minor leagues for many years, but once he granted you his confidence, he gave it in full . . . The judge could and would tell you the "inside" of many of baseball's odder doings, point out where criticism or praise were called for and forecast happenings that sometimes were years away . . . He did it, not as a favor, but because he believed it helped the game to help a writer to a clear understanding of the inner workings of the baseball business . . . Still buried in our files, for instance, are some of the judge's letters of 1944 forecasting such things as last year's player's guild fiasco and the development of player representation in baseball councils.

When Warren Spahn, the Braves' southpaw flinger, was a high school kid with big league aspirations, his four sisters, Marjorie, June, Gertrude and Eleanor, frequently were defeated as catchers while he drilled to learn control . . . Eleanor, then 13, was the favorite and she explains: "Boy catchers were scare in our neighborhood so it was up to the four of us." . . . Spahn still maintains they were the best looking batterymates who ever took his offerings.

Rocky Graziano, now one of Brooklyn's leading citizens, is a Giant fan because, he says "they once let me in for nuttin." . . . Commenting on the charges and denials that Kyle Rote was "subjected to pressure" in deciding to switch from Vanderbilt to Southern Methodist U., a Texas scribe snickers in print: "SMU offered him everything except the Adolphus Hotel." . . . Howie Morenz, Jr., is on the Montreal Canadiens' reserve list and may break into pro hockey with Buffalo this winter. If he's half as good as his father, that will be enough.

Reunion—Fifty-four years ago F. Y. Sterns, now 86, was a guard at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago—and it was there he met his wife, Grace, now 76. Here they are pictured reminiscing under a lace parasol at a reunion of old-timers who worked at the Exposition.
